International outlook

With 5,000 students from more than 140 countries worldwide, Regent's is a genuinely international community. You will make friends from all over the world, learn about other cultures, expand your outlook and build a network of contacts for the future.

Central London location

You will be within easy reach of all that this exciting European city has to offer. We are close to the City of London and the West End, with easy access to London's famous theatres, galleries and museums, as well as major sporting and entertainment venues.

Beautiful surroundings in which to learn

With mellow red-brick buildings set in 11 acres of private garden, our main campus in Regent's Park is a quiet, secluded haven in which to live and study. A short walk away, our Marylebone site sits in a lively historical area that retains the artisan feel of the Georgian village it once was – a neighbourhood now known for its up-market designer boutiques, cafés and design shops.

Excellent transport links

Our central location makes it easy to get around. We are close to Baker Street Tube station, 10 minutes by Underground from the Eurostar and less than one hour's travel from London airports.

Employability

We focus on preparing you for the real demands of the working world. Our programmes balance academic knowledge with practical, hands-on experience. You will be taught by people who are also working professionals. Visits from industry experts, working on live briefs and real-world case studies help to bring your learning to life.

Personal attention

At Regent's, you will never be just another face in the crowd. This is a friendly place where staff and students know each other by name. We place a strong emphasis on plenty of face-to-face teaching time, giving you the individual attention you need to succeed.

London as your classroom

Whether you plan to study business, humanities or design, you will find that London's culture, heritage and commerce form an essential part of the Regent's experience.

Studying in London

London has no parallel as an international city in which to live and study. Regent's location at the heart of the UK capital puts you within easy reach of the world-class cultural, educational and leisure facilities that make London the top destination for visitors across the world.

London has always attracted people from across the globe. More than 300 languages are spoken throughout the city, which is home to a hugely diverse population. It is also a great place to be young – more than a quarter of the people who live here are under 25 and London has the highest concentration of university students in Europe.

Around the campus

London is famed for its green space, and Regent's Park – one of the city's eight royal parks – is right on your doorstep. From here, you can walk to London Zoo, rub shoulders with the waxworks at Madame Tussauds, explore the markets and cafés of Camden, browse the up-market shops in Marylebone Village or stroll down to busy Oxford Street.

Central London attractions

As well as enjoying your immediate surroundings, you will be ideally placed to explore all that London has to offer.

Both our Regent's Park campus and Marylebone site are close to Baker Street Underground station with its many Tube lines, so that you will be no more than 20 minutes away from most of London's main attractions.

The city's shops, theatres, galleries, nightlife and sports venues are all within easy reach.

With hundreds of cinemas and theatres, including the world-famous West End theatres and the National Theatre on the South Bank, you will have plenty of live and on-screen entertainment to choose from.

Regent's is just a few stops on the Underground from the major sporting and music venues of the O2, Wembley Stadium and Wembley Arena.

London is also a great place for street markets and open-air events. Around 250 festivals take place in the capital each year, including Europe's biggest street festival, the Notting Hill Carnival.

London as your classroom

London is a wonderfully inspiring place in which to study. You will be surrounded by world-class architecture, museums, galleries and many other venues that offer endless opportunities for learning and research. London is home to hundreds of world-class museums, such as the British Museum, Natural History Museum, the V&A and the Design Museum.

There are more than 800 art galleries, including the major collections at Tate Britain, Tate Modern and the National Gallery. The British Library, with its unique resources, is a short bus or Tube ride from either campus.

Career opportunities

Being located close to the main financial, business and cultural districts of the city offers excellent opportunities for finding internships, gaining work experience and building contacts for your future.

London is one of the world's leading financial centres: more than half of the UK's top listed companies and one-fifth of Europe's largest companies are based here. You will be close to the key districts of Mayfair, Canary Wharf and the City of London.

The city is also a focus for the digital industries. Google's headquarters is just 10 minutes away from campus at King's Cross, and 'Silicon Roundabout' is to the east of the city.

Our proximity to London's theatreland and the traditional media hubs of Soho and Bloomsbury offers plenty of opportunity to gain experience within the creative industries.

London is also a world capital for fashion and design. Many leading designers are based here, and you will be within easy reach of flagship fashion stores and the luxury shopping districts of Bond Street and Knightsbridge, as well as areas for alternative and vintage fashion, such as Spitalfields and Camden.

Research at Regent's

These pages profile Regent's ongoing research projects and research output. For information about supervised MPhil and PhD research degrees, please see pages 90–95.

Research at Regent's is organised around central themes that focus on the University's core activities in business, humanities, social science and languages. As well as maintaining close links with professional organisations, we host a large number of seminars, colloquia and conferences, with participants from academia, politics and business. The collegiate atmosphere of the University nurtures both inter-disciplinary research and individual scholarship.

Centre for Banking & Finance (CBF)

The CBF offers academics and practitioners access to the latest research on banking and finance, and the opportunity to share and discuss areas of interest. The Centre promotes high-calibre academic research on issues at the core of today's globalised financial system. It organises an annual conference and hosts events for research students and scholars. Members' research interests include banking in emerging economies, microfinance, risk management, banking regulation and supervision, monetary policy, treasury management, money markets and credit risk management.

Institute of Contemporary European Studies (ICES)

ICES builds on the University's research and contacts to contribute to the debate on contemporary Europe. The Institute's seminars and briefings, including the Jean Monnet Memorial and Europe in the World annual lectures, result in the publication of ICES Occasional Papers. ICES works closely with the Senior European Experts (SEE), jointly hosting three annual lectures (also published as ICES Occasional Papers), and with the European Government Business Relations Council, which holds one of its seminars each year at the University. The annual Regent's Report is produced by ICES.

Networks of Power (NOP)

NOP brings together scholars with common interests in how power relations are constructed on a national and international level. NOP is at the forefront of academic research in this area and we provide advice to governments worldwide. The centre forges links between academics and policymakers as well as fostering and supporting high-quality research. Our international speakers' programme, organised and chaired by Professor Yossi Mekelberg, is a forum where some of the world's most important political figures and diplomats engage with the academic community.

Psychotherapy & Counselling Psychology Reflections Research Centre (PCPR)

The PCPR focuses on psychological phenomena in therapy relationships. It promotes high-quality research using innovative methodologies to explore the quality of the therapeutic relationship, with particular focus on sexuality and sexual attraction in psychotherapy and counselling psychology. The Centre supports the outstanding reputation of Regent's School of Psychotherapy & Psychology with its integrative, existential, phenomenological and pluralistic ethos, grounded in masters' and doctoral programmes. It runs conferences, seminars and courses, including research training. Staff are clinicians as well as scholars, maintaining strong links with the NHS and other services and institutions. The PCPR also hosts the Journal of Psychotherapy and Counselling Psychology Reflections and organises an annual conference.

Regent's Centre for Transnational Studies (RCTS)

The RCTS focuses on the transnational phenomena that cut across the disciplinary boundaries of management, economics, sociology and other social sciences. It promotes interdisciplinary research and teaching across such fields as management, marketing, finance, mobility, higher education and cross-cultural studies. The Centre's Chair is sponsored by Ria Financial, with research grants from the Heritage Lottery Fund, British Academy, European Commission and Higher Education Academy, among others. RCTS researchers are consulted on migration, entrepreneurship and marketing by government and non-government organisations. The Centre hosts several international journals in business, management, marketing, mobility and cultural studies, as well as organising research conferences and seminars and supporting a visiting programme for academic scholars.

Regent's Institute of Languages & Culture (RILC)

The international diversity of our student population – more than 140 nationalities and 110 languages – gives Regent's a unique identity. Our research informs and underpins RILC's teaching programmes. Our ongoing language teacher research project has led to several conference papers and an international workshop on excellence in classroom practice. Further projects examine the role of language and culture in psychotherapy, language policy, heritage speakers in Chinese and Russian, digital and online language learning, cross-cultural management, representation of culture through the media, film semiotics, and French contemporary philosophy. RILC's Languages and Employability Conference focused on linguistic skills in the 21st century workplace.

Student Life

We want to make sure you get the most out of every moment as a student at Regent's. You will find plenty of opportunities here to socialise, relax, exercise, be creative and get involved. As well as the many activities on campus, you will be ideally placed to explore all that London, the UK and Europe have to offer.

Student Union

The Union is your voice in the University, representing students at all levels of decision-making to ensure that the student experience remains at the heart of developments and activity. Union officers are elected annually. As well as representing your interests they provide a host of services and activities to improve student life. As a new student you are automatically enrolled as a member of the Student Union (membership is free).

Clubs and societies

The Student Union supports a number of clubs and societies and welcomes the creation of new ones.

We are proud to be located in a diverse city, drawing students from a variety of backgrounds and from countries across the world. This ensures that, whatever your interests, you will find like-minded people as well as lots of new ideas to explore.

Clubs and societies vary from year to year, and have included everything from photography, debating, music, psychology and law to film, finance and human rights.

We also have many cultural associations, such as the African-American, Indian, Middle Eastern, Pakistan, Russian and Scandinavian societies.

Events and activities

You will have lots of events to choose from, both on and off campus. The University hosts a number of major social events during the year, including the Grand Autumn Party, Freshers' Fair, graduation events, the Regent's Arts Season and Regent's Fashion Show.

The Student Union also organises a wide variety of social activities each term, such as barbecues, parties, club nights, karaoke evenings, quiz nights, boat parties and networking events.

Food and drink

With coffee shops, bars, restaurants and a deli all within a short walk of each other on the Regent's Park campus, you will find plenty of choice when it comes to food and drink:

- The Regent's Refectory, our main dining hall, offers a wide selection of dishes from around the world. The menu changes each day and caters for a variety of diets, including vegetarian. Open from early morning until evening, the refectory is a popular choice for meals and meeting friends
- With its attractive feature fireplaces, columns and wood-panelled walls, the Regent's Brasserie is another favourite student meeting place. The Brasserie includes a restaurant with an impressive European-inspired menu, as well as a more informal café
- Bedford's Bar is open all day, serving a selection of coffee, pastries and snacks and a full menu for lunch and dinner. As well as being a great place to socialise, the large flat-screen televisions make it the ideal venue for watching news and sport while you enjoy a meal or drink

Exploring further afield

Our Student Services team can help you make the most of being in London, with information on the local area, activities and events across the city, and discounted theatre tickets. You can also broaden your knowledge of the UK and Europe through the range of trips, activities and cultural experiences on offer, such as a weekend in Paris or visits to a range of culturally significant and popular UK destinations.

Relaxation

The student common room is furnished with sofas, PCs and a flat screen TV and has wireless internet access. It makes a great place to chill out between classes and chat with friends.

There is also a music room equipped with guitars, drum kit and keyboards, as well as a PA system, microphones and amplifiers, offering the ideal environment to develop your creative talents.

Sport and fitness

We encourage all our students to be active and healthy, and can offer advice and support to help you achieve your health, fitness and sporting goals. You can become a member of a sports team to play competitively or casually, and join exercise classes and other health and well-being initiatives that take place throughout the year.

A varied range of fitness sessions take place on campus, including yoga, pilates, boxercise, zumba, resistance and high-intensity training. There is also a multi-use games area for five-a-side football, tennis and basketball. Our sports teams vary from year to year and usually include men's and women's football, basketball, tennis and polo teams.

To become a gym member you can join the Regent's Place Health Club, which is situated close to campus and gives a substantial discount on membership to Regent's students. The club offers extensive gym facilities, personal training and a wide range of studio classes, plus sauna and steam rooms, café and bar.

'Student life at Regent's is very pleasant. The campus is safe and peaceful, with a cafeteria offering a choice of meals, quiet study rooms, good technology that supports your studies, and a bar and restaurant where you can meet other students. The best part is the location in the heart of London, which makes it easy to discover the city whenever you want.'

Finding Somewhere to Live

We know how important it is to have comfortable and conveniently located housing when you are studying in London. We will assist you in finding somewhere to stay, either by arranging a place for you in University-managed housing or by helping you find somewhere in the private sector. We can help to identify what is important to you and make recommendations to suit different budgets and requirements.

University-managed accommodation: on campus

Our halls of residence are set in the beautiful leafy grounds of the Regent's Park campus, looking out over the gardens, lake and surrounding park.

Living in hall allows you to relax and socialise on campus while being only a short walk away from the vibrant shops and nightlife of the West End.

- Reid Hall has rooms with one, two and three beds. There are single-sex bathrooms on the corridors of each floor, as well as a small kitchen area with kettle, sink and microwave. Eight rooms have wheelchair access and are located on a corridor with a wheelchair-accessible bathroom
- Oliver Flats comprise four rooms, located in a corner of the campus separate from Reid and Oliver Halls. There are three single rooms and one twin room, each with its own bathroom

The reception desk in Reid Hall is staffed 24 hours a day. All residents share the facilities in Reid Hall, which include a launderette and TV lounge. Residents are provided with fresh linen each week. All rooms have Wi-Fi access and residents have swipe-card access to the buildings.

On-site, we have Resident Assistants (RAs), who are here to help you as you settle into life at Regent's.

Meal plans

Students living in University-managed housing on campus receive a meal plan swipe-card as part of their housing fees. The card contains a set amount of credit, which you can use to purchase soft drinks and food at any of the food outlets on campus. The meal plan is also available to non-resident students and can be purchased online.

Hall fees 2016-17 (per person)

Weekly rates for one person, including a meal plan:

Reid Hall
Single Room	£377
Twin Room	£303
Triple Room	£287
Oliver Flats
Single Room	£417
Twin Room	£377

- Damage deposit for all on-campus accommodation £200
- Fees are reviewed annually and may be subject to change. Please check the website for the latest information

Places in hall are in high demand, so please apply early. We give priority to students who are starting their first term and we allocate accommodation on a one-term basis.

Accommodation: off campus

In partnership with urbanest, Regent's offers rooms at urbanest St Pancras, arranged into self-contained studios, shared flats with en-suite rooms, three-bed shared flats and twin en-suite rooms, at a variety of price points.

Located next to an idyllic British canalside, urbanest St Pancras is a short walk from King's Cross and Camden Town Tubes and multiple bus routes. It is also a 12-minute cycle from the University itself.

Every room is fully furnished and comes with 50Mbps internet access and Wi-Fi, under-floor heating and luxury showers. There is secure access to the building and rooms. Prices include utility bills. There is an on-site support team 24/7, dedicated to helping you with any problems and questions you may have.

Regent's staff attend the site regularly to provide support and advice. We have 39-week or 51-week contracts available.

Private-sector accommodation

If you prefer to arrange your own accommodation in the private sector, we can advise you on housing options and provide information on all aspects of private-sector housing, including residence halls, landlords, estate agents and homestays. You can sign up for housing updates by email at our website.

Contact us

To apply for accommodation or enquire about any other service, please contact the Accommodation Office.

All the Support You Need

We understand that to do well at university, students will often need different kinds of support at different times. We offer a comprehensive range of information, support and specialist advice to help you with any matter, whether personal, practical or academic.

Personal support

Our Student Support Officers are here to offer help and information when you need it, on a wide range of matters.

You can contact us at any point during your studies for:

Advice on academic matters, such as difficulties with studying, periods of absence or concerns about your course

Help with personal issues, from quick queries to issues that need a more in-depth response

Assistance with medical registration and finding the health services you need

Advice on budgeting and applying for the Hardship Fund

You can also pick up tips and advice from the regular information sessions we hold on the topics that are most important to students throughout the year.

Effective studying

We offer academic skills workshops during the term and one-to-one tutorials throughout the year to ensure you have the skills to be successful both at University and in your future career. The workshops will help to develop your skills and improve your results. There is also a range of supporting materials on Blackboard, the University's virtual learning environment, for independent study.

Healthcare

All degree-seeking students are entitled to free healthcare under the UK National Health Service, and to free accident and emergency hospital care while in the UK for six months or more. However, to gain your entitlement, it is vital that you register with a local NHS doctor. We can help you with this process.

Counselling

All students have access to our Counselling Service. Counselling can help you deal with all kinds of issues, such as anxiety, depression, low self-esteem, coming out, grief and loss, trauma and relationship difficulties.

The emphasis is on helping you to make changes rather than on telling you what to do. If you could benefit from more specialist interventions or advice, we can refer you to resources within the NHS or the wider community.

Immigration and visas

Our Student Immigration Advisory Service team can help with questions about immigration and visas, assist you with online visa applications and oversee compliance with Home Office requirements.

The maximum amount of time that you can spend studying on a student visa in the UK at undergraduate and postgraduate degree level is five years.

It is your responsibility to ensure that you apply for the correct visa before you start your programme and comply with the conditions attached while you are studying.

You can contact us for help with your initial visa application once you have confirmed acceptance of a place at Regent's. We are also here to help if you require a visa extension in the UK during your studies and we can offer immigration advice for any future post-study plans.

Support for disabled students

We want all students to be able to participate fully as equal members of the learning community at Regent's, and will make every reasonable effort to support you if you have a disability.

Disclosure of disability

If your condition meets the UK Equality Act's definition of disability, and if it may affect your ability to participate fully in your studies or in campus life, please tell us about it when you apply, so that we can discuss your support needs with you at an early stage. If you have not already told us about a disability or support need, please contact the Disability Officer as soon as possible after you arrive.

Supporting documentation

If you have support needs due to a specific learning difficulty (e.g. dyslexia), please provide an up-to-date diagnostic report from an appropriately qualified professional. This is so that we can assess your needs appropriately and make any necessary adjustments. For other disabilities, a detailed doctor's letter is likely to be needed. If documentation is in a foreign language, please provide an English translation.

If you think you may have a specific learning difficulty, but have not been diagnosed, please ask the Disability Officer about our free screening service.

Any data we collect about you is stored on the University's secure student record system, which may only be seen by authorised staff.

Physical access to facilities

We are committed to improving access to and within the University buildings. There is a continuing programme to facilitate access around the campus. Some classes, however, take place in teaching rooms that can only be reached by stairs.

If your disability affects your mobility and you require ground-floor rooms or rooms with lift access, the Disability Officer can help with making appropriate arrangements. Please let us know of your needs as early as possible.

Funding

UK students (and those with 'settled' status) can apply for the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA). Details on eligibility, what the DSA can be used for and how to apply can be found on our website. The Disability Officer can assist you with your application.

Details of possible funding for non-UK students to meet specific needs due to disability can be found on our website. You can also contact the Disability Officer for more information.

Student Disability Policy

You will find more more information about the campus and the support available to you, plus a complete copy of the Student Disability Policy, on our website.

Email disability@regents.ac.uk

Learning Resources

We offer a wide range of resources to support your learning, both on and off campus. These include a well provisioned library service, a media services department and extensive IT facilities, including campus-wide Wi-Fi coverage and an online virtual learning environment.

Libraries

The University Library Service gives you access to around 55,000 books, a wide range of academic and professional journals and online resources.

Specialist subject-related databases provide valuable and relevant information that you can use for course projects and assignments covering arts, humanities, social sciences, finance, business, management, fashion and design, and psychology. There are dedicated terminals for Bloomberg and DataStream services.

We subscribe to a wide variety of periodicals, both in hard copy and online, giving you access to the latest articles, from daily news to in-depth research studies.

Our library search point, RULDiscovery, means you can find books, e-books, e-journals and database articles with a single search.

You will be given a general library induction, after which you can request additional sessions with an academic liaison librarian for individual or small-group information skills training. You are welcome to contact the academic liaison librarian for your programme at any time with specific enquiries and for one-to-one support.

Wi-Fi is available throughout, and we offer dedicated spaces for studying, including group-study rooms and silent-study areas for independent learning. Our first-floor learning space allows you to study using mobile devices.

The library is open during the week, evenings and at weekends. During key exam periods, the library is open 24/7.

Online learning

Blackboard is the University's virtual learning environment (VLE), which gives you a single point of access to resources for your programme of study.

You can view module materials, use interactive tools such as discussion boards and wikis, submit assignments and receive feedback from your tutors.

Blackboard also gives you access to a range of other useful resources for your studies.

Media services

All our classrooms are equipped with multimedia presentation systems and are connected to the internet and University computer network. These include interactive SMART Screens, visualisers and Blu-ray players across both campuses.

We offer a variety of media equipment that you can borrow including:

- Professional video cameras
- Lighting
- Sound-recording equipment
- Editing equipment

The equipment is regularly updated to meet the hi-tech requirements of today's learning environment and can be reserved online via the library catalogue.

Postgraduate facilities

Our restricted-access Postgraduate Centre has a social area, kitchen, computer terminals and reproduction facilities, along with its own group- and silent-study room areas.

IT resources

Regent's University London has invested heavily in its IT service and systems to provide you with a fast and reliable IT network, together with great support and an extensive range of online services to support and enhance your learning.

You are welcome to bring along your own laptop or tablet and you can access most software applications and your University IT account remotely at any time, from any internet-enabled device. All campuses have Wi-Fi coverage and you will also be able to connect to the worldwide roaming Eduroam network. With our self-print service, you can securely collect your printed documents from any campus printer.

Our IT rooms are equipped with PCs and Apple Mac workstations, with a range of specialist software packages including AutoCAD, Microsoft Office and Adobe Suites. All students are invited to download their personal copy of Microsoft Office and anti-virus software to keep their devices up-to-date and secure.

The IT Service Desk is available to assist you with all your technology needs, offering 24/7 telephone support. Walk-in and email support services are also available during business hours.

Languages at Regent's

Promoting language learning for all is a very important part of the University's international focus, and Regent's provides foreign and English language courses throughout the year. We teach in small groups to ensure you get the attention you need. Our English language courses are accredited by the British Council.

English language programmes

Our experienced, highly qualified English language teachers at the English Language Centre can help you to improve your language skills in order to study on your post-graduate programme more effectively.

You can study English before you start your academic studies at the University, as well as taking support classes during your degree.

Pre-sessional English course

This course is designed specifically to prepare you for successful academic study at Regent's. You will gain an overview of academic culture in the UK, develop your skills in general and academic English and learn skills to help you prepare for different types of academic assessment.

English support during your academic study

The English Language Centre is able to provide academic English and study skills support for you throughout the year. Classes will support you in English skills that you need to improve and provide you with a range of practice in the skills you need for successful study.

IELTS preparation course

This course is designed to prepare you for the IELTS examination. It aims to build your vocabulary and confidence in reading, writing, listening and speaking.

The course is focused on the skills needed for successful academic study, such as listening skills for lectures, understanding academic texts, building your academic vocabulary, writing essays and reports, exam techniques, and taking part in discussions, debates and presentations.

We also offer a range of other English language support programmes including:

General English

We provide a wide range of courses from Pre-Intermediate to Advanced (B1 – C1). You can study a course from 2–48 weeks, and courses are focused on your individual needs and current level of English.

You can choose to study morning classes, afternoon classes or intensive classes (25 hours per week).

All General English courses aim to improve your all-round ability in English, covering the skills of reading, writing, listening and speaking, as well as focusing on grammar, vocabulary, pronunciation and aspects of British culture.

Internship programmes

You can take a full-time English course followed by a full-time unpaid work placement. We work with an agency to help you to gain a work placement. You can apply for a position in almost any sector, including administration, finance and marketing. You will be able to improve your English and gain important international work experience. You will receive certificates from both the English course and the placement.

Learn a new language

In addition to your regular studies, you can choose to learn a new language, by attending an evening class. If you are studying an MA International Business, you can choose to study a language as an elective choice, rather than as an evening class.

Evening classes are open to all students and are taught by highly skilled professionals, experienced in teaching both general and business language courses.

Whether you are starting a new language or developing your knowledge, we have a course to suit you. We offer classes in:

- Arabic
- German
- Japanese
- Portuguese
- Spanish
- French
- Italian
- Mandarin Chinese
- Russian

Our language tutors are all native speakers and use the latest multimedia resources and teaching methods. Group sizes are small, with typically between six and 15 students per class. This ensures a high level of interaction between student and tutor, and contributes to an excellent learning environment.

Courses run in three terms – autumn, spring and summer. The summer term starts in May and is an eight-week course, while the autumn and spring terms run for 10 weeks, allowing you to fit your language learning around your studies. Students benefit from a 50% discount on the full cost of a language course.

We offer classes at the following levels:

Beginners 1

This course is for students with very little or no knowledge of the language. It will enable you to grasp the basics of how the language operates. You will learn to have very simple conversations and exchange basic personal information, including your likes and dislikes.

Beginners 2

Students on this course will have some previous experience of language learning. You will start to engage in simple conversation on frequent and familiar topics, exchanging information about yourself and your routine, your interests and plans, travel and shopping.

Elementary

This course is for students who have a good knowledge of the basics of the language. By the end, you will be able to communicate with increased fluency and accuracy, talk about past experiences and future events, make suggestions and requests, and operate successfully in personal, social and some routine professional situations.

Intermediate

This course is aimed at students who have studied the language before and have a good knowledge, being able to communicate about standard situations, including talking about past events and the future. By the end of the course you will be able to communicate with greater fluency and accuracy with native speakers on frequent topics and in routine situations in personal, social and business contexts.

Proficient

Students who join this course will have a very good command of the language and its grammatical structures, as well as the ability to adapt their language to a wide range of settings. By the end, you will be able to use the language confidently, communicate with native speakers, engage in debates and use more sophisticated structures, and read and understand authentic written and aural texts.

Please note that not all levels may be offered for every language.

Preparing for Your Future

Our team of dedicated careers and business relations staff can offer a wealth of information, advice and guidance to help you secure your career goals. This includes extensive careers counselling, as well as assistance in finding an internship or a permanent job after graduation.

The Careers & Business Relations (CBR) team offers support throughout your time at Regent's with help to gain work experience, build your employment skills and develop your career goals.

Employability skills workshops

We offer a range of practical workshops, open to all students, that will equip you with the broad skills necessary to be successful at all stages of the recruitment cycle. Workshops cover a range of topics, including job-search strategies, writing a CV and covering letter, filling in application forms, preparing for interviews, networking and using social media.

We also run specialist workshops on starting a business and on working in specific sectors, such as oil and gas, fashion and design, and business and finance.

Personalised careers guidance

You can arrange one-to-one appointments with your careers adviser, who will help with any questions you have and assist you in your job search. Making full use of this support will enable you to make genuine progress towards achieving a suitable role in your chosen field.

Career coaching sessions

Professional one-to-one career coaching sessions by industry specialists are available, helping you to increase your sector knowledge and build your professional network.

Careers events

Each term we organise a number of sector-specific seminars and networking events on campus. These are attended by many international companies and organisations, and offer an invaluable opportunity to find out about employment prospects in different industries and business sectors, and develop your professional network.

Recent events have helped students find out more about careers in banking and finance, consulting, fashion, luxury brands, the media and the not-for-profit sector.

Online resources

In addition to regular face-to-face contact with our expert staff, you can access all the resources you need online through CareerHub. These include advice sheets, videos and self-assessment tools.

Our online vacancies board advertises the latest internships, part-time work, volunteering, graduate and postgraduate opportunities available in the UK and globally. Students wishing to work abroad can consult the Going Global database.

Employers also use CareerHub to advertise live business or consultancy projects that could make an interesting dissertation topic for students.

Work experience and internships

All students are strongly encouraged to undertake periods of work experience and internships during their time at Regent's to enhance the educational experience. We can provide support and guidance on finding internships and work placements.

Keeping in Touch

When you graduate from Regent's University London you automatically become a member of the Alumni Association, an exclusive club with a diverse and vibrant membership worldwide.

With more than 15,800 members in 158 countries worldwide – graduates of the University's many different programmes – you will be part of a group that includes some of the most accomplished professionals in international business and industry, as well as practitioners in fields such as counselling, media, international relations and design.

Membership of the Alumni Association is free and offers many benefits, including networking opportunities, continuing careers information and support, regular events and access to the library and IT support centre.

You will be invited to regular reunions and events with other alumni and teaching staff, as well as members of the wider University community of students.

If you move away from the UK after graduation we hope you will join one of the growing number of Regent's Clubs based in cities all over the world – there are now more than 40 globally. You may even like to coordinate one yourself in your hometown.

With regular e-communications and a dedicated magazine, we will keep you in touch with University and alumni news, and informed about new alumni benefits and opportunities as they are launched.

There are also opportunities for you to put your post-Regent's experience to work, helping current and prospective students as an alumni volunteer or mentor.

All you have to do is keep us informed of your contact details and email address after graduation.

Business & Management

Regent's offers a world-class business education delivered in a truly cosmopolitan, multilingual and dynamic learning environment.

An international perspective is at the heart of everything we do. Our focus on learning from the real business world will give you the edge in your future career.

Our approach to learning is highly personal and practical. We will treat you as an individual, offering real, hands-on experience of the international workplace.

At Regent's, you will find:

A peaceful and secure environment in which to study, just minutes by Tube from all the business opportunities of central London

Industry-relevant degrees that blend formal academic training with direct learning experience

Specialist staff with a wide range of industry and academic expertise

Guest lectures from industry experts

Personal support to develop your skills and shape your future career

International outlook

You will benefit from a strong global focus to your studies, exploring the many different relationships and influences that affect the changing business environment worldwide.

Your skills as a future international business leader will be fostered through formal and informal interaction with students from a wide variety of nationalities, from many different parts of the world.

Being part of this highly cosmopolitan community will allow you to build your understanding of other cultures and develop an international peer network that will support your future career.

Languages are a core element or option on many of our business and management programmes. We offer tuition in several economically important languages, including Mandarin Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian and Spanish (see page 19).

Practical, hands-on learning

A strongly practical ethos runs throughout our programmes. We focus on teaching the current skills that graduates need for success in the international business environment, both now and in the future.

You will be consistently encouraged to apply your learning in the study of real-life business scenarios through case studies, seminars and workshops.

You will enjoy a close working relationship with staff to help maximise your potential. Every student is treated as an individual, with high levels of support from both academic and professional staff.

This is supplemented by regular guest lectures and workshops with visiting academics and industry experts, bringing the most current business experience to the classroom.

Future prospects

Regent's graduates enjoy a high rate of employment and command higher-than-average salaries on completing their programmes.

We are very proud of our growing body of influential alumni, many of whom occupy high-profile positions throughout the world, particularly in the fields of finance and investment, manufacturing, marketing and advertising, luxury brands and information technology.

Entrepreneurship is a strong theme of many of our programmes, and an increasing number of our graduates are setting up their own companies, as well as continuing a well-established trend of joining their family business.

'Regent's has the best facilities and resources to give students insights about global management. There is also a huge amount of practical method, which helps students sharpen their skills in real life.'

International Collegiate Business Strategy Competition

Each spring, universities from all over the world participate in the International Collegiate Business Strategy Competition (ICBSC), the world's longest-running, most comprehensive business strategy competition.

Regent's postgraduate teams have been crowned four times as world graduate champions in best annual reports and documentation, including twice as best overall performance in the competition.

Each team takes over the management of a simulated or virtual manufacturing company, writes a strategic business plan and executes it through key strategic and operational decisions in marketing, finance, HR, production and operations. The simulated environment incorporates the economies of two countries and requires consideration of global and domestic strategy.

Regent's business students worked with luxury tea brand JADU for their entry into the 2015 International Collegiate Business Strategy Competition, held in Anaheim, California

Meet the Faculty

Our academic staff come from a wide range of backgrounds in business and industry. They combine academic credentials with extensive professional experience across many different disciplines. Some of the leading staff that you will encounter during your time at Regent's are profiled here.

Dr Mikko Arevuo

Head of Programmes

MA International Business
and MA Management

Dr Mikko Arevuo is principal lecturer and head of the university's postgraduate management programmes: MA International Business and MA Management. His career spans over 20 years in international corporate and investment banking, consulting and academia. Prior to his move into academia, Mikko was Vice President at Citigroup's institutional banking division. He was responsible for market strategy development and global risk management of the bank's exposure to the insurance industry in the Nordic countries. He has also worked on EU-funded privatisation initiatives in the emerging European economies including Bulgaria, Slovakia, and Ukraine. Dr Arevuo's current research and teaching interests are in the areas of managerial and organisational cognition, collective decision-making, strategy as managerial practice, and the influence of Austrian economics on strategic management theory. A native of Finland, Mikko was educated in the US and the UK. He holds a degree in economics from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MBA, and a PhD from Cranfield University, UK.

Nikita Richards

MA International Business

The MA International Business is designed for students seeking to build a career in a dynamic international business environment. The programme will enable you to develop a sound understanding of international business issues and drivers, together with capability in the key linked disciplines of international marketing, human resource management, strategic management, finance and entrepreneurship.

The option to study a language is an important aspect of the programme, enabling you to communicate effectively in an international business context. Options for language study include Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian and Spanish.

The programme will develop your knowledge and critical understanding of international business issues. You will increase your awareness of change, the impact of entrepreneurial disruption, and the dynamics of different cultures, and you will develop evaluative and problem-solving skills.

There is a focus on developing your personal as well as analytical and professional attributes. This can be done by attending co-curricular activities that are accredited for Continuing Professional Development (CPD). You will evaluate your strengths and abilities, and plan your own development, learning to act on your own initiative and take responsibility for your actions.

Alongside your study of the core disciplines of international business and management, you will also have the opportunity to develop your interests and knowledge through electives in a range of specialist areas, such as family business, entrepreneurship and innovation, private equity and venture capital, and negotiation and coaching in different cultural contexts.

You will be actively supported in developing your career path through consultations with our specialist advisers, and will have the opportunity to be mentored by a member of the Chartered Management Institute. In the final term, you will complete a major piece of work – either a dissertation or business project – that demonstrates your abilities in research, analysis and applying your knowledge in practice.

Key features

Central London location giving direct access to companies and experts from the international business community

A supportive environment for both your career and personal development

Guest lectures and workshops with visiting practitioners who are experts in their field

Strong emphasis on teamwork and practical, experience-based learning linked to the world of business

Private Equity and Venture Capital

Transnational Marketing Seminar

* Advertised electives are dependent on student numbers. Students should provide a first, second and third choice for each elective.

Learning and assessment

The practical application of academic learning is a key feature of the programme. You will study a range of current theory and practices in the management of international business, and explore the application of academic theory to real-life business scenarios.

There is a recurring emphasis on personal and managerial development and teamwork.

Teaching methods include individual and small-group tutorials, seminars, workshops, case-study analysis and group work. There is a great deal of emphasis on self-directed study. Much of your learning will take place through participation in seminars, where you will discuss topics and tasks that you have researched.

Guest speaker events will give you access to the most contemporary expertise and experience in business. You will also benefit from company visits to see businesses in action.

Assessment methods include individual essays and assignments, group coursework assignments, debates, individual and group presentations, time-based exams, and writing research plans.

Future opportunities

The diverse, practical nature of the programme will enable you to develop a range of transferable skills that will enhance your employment prospects across a wide range of businesses. You will gain the ability to analyse dynamic situations, respond with creative solutions and communicate effectively in complex, fast-moving international environments.

Your skills will also open doors to you in areas such as strategic analysis and management, consulting, marketing and developing business start-ups.

Entry requirements

A minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution.

MA Luxury Brand Management

The luxury industry has evolved rapidly over the last decade, with brands expanding and consolidating into mature and fast-developing markets. Successful professionals in this field demonstrate the ability to operate in a highly competitive global context. An innovative and creative approach with a strong cultural perspective is also key.

The MA Luxury Brand Management takes a strategic view of the dynamic characteristics and opportunities within the global luxury goods and services industry. It combines academic study with the practicalities of management, with a focus on delivering an exceptional experience for consumers and gaining a global competitive advantage.

You will enjoy a high level of teaching contact and support from lecturers who offer a breadth of expertise and experience across a variety of luxury sectors. You will also benefit from lectures by guest speakers and visits to companies managing luxury brands.

Through taught classes, hands-on projects and contact with industry experts, you will develop the knowledge, insights and critical skills to make informed judgements about the strategic and tactical business activities of luxury brands.

The programme is kept current by the research, business practice and networks of academic staff, who incorporate the latest industry thinking into teaching and learning.

You will be able to apply the knowledge and skills you develop on the programme through a final project – either an academic dissertation, live business project or start-up project.

Learning and assessment

Teaching and learning methods include lectures, seminars, structured workshops, case study analysis, group work, individual and group tutorials. There is much emphasis on self-directed study, particularly in the dissertation/business project.

You will be assessed through coursework assignments, including presentations, essays, simulation exercises, fieldwork, research-based projects, and written or oral examinations.

Future opportunities

This programme will equip you with the knowledge, confidence and skills to pursue roles in international luxury brand management, marketing, communications and retailing.

You will be able to develop a network of industry contacts that will be invaluable in your future career. Alumni are working in a range of roles in advertising, PR, brand management and marketing, in prestigious companies throughout the industry. Others have started their own companies.

Entry requirements

A minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution.

You will be asked to write a 1000-word personal statement outlining your reasons for applying, and how your previous experience is of relevance to the programme. Please note you may also be invited for an interview.

‘Regent’s University London offered exactly what I was looking for: a luxury management programme which would keep my future career options open while enhancing my knowledge of the luxury industry.’

Samia Solh, Lebanon,
MA Luxury Brand Management

MA Management

The MA Management offers an advanced study of management and will help you to gain an understanding of the changing global context in which organisations operate. The programme emphasises the personal nature of effective management and leadership, developing graduates with a holistic approach, who can become catalysts for change in both business and society.

The MA Management will equip you with the essential business and life skills to master management practices at an enhanced level. You will be prepared to become a more effective leader, manager and citizen, capable of making a positive difference in both your work and community.

The programme philosophy is to 'cultivate the seeds of possibility', bringing together management and leadership theory, practice and values while nurturing the social and emotional aspects of learning, and encouraging you to act with confidence in challenging situations. We will encourage you to develop your 'people skills', making the most of professional and collegial relationships to develop thriving and effective business models.

You will be immersed in the study of leadership styles and management practices, and look at the personal style of particular leaders – how they manage people and operate in ever-changing external environments.

The course offers a strong focus on developing your personal and professional attributes. You will evaluate your strengths and abilities, and plan your own development, learning how to think for yourself, work in teams and take responsibility. The programme will foster your self-reliance and self-awareness, develop your ability to cope with change, uncertainty and ambiguity, and cultivate your sense of managerial and personal accountability.

We continually aim to apply theoretical learning to the world of business. You will be taught by staff with considerable academic and industry experience, and hear from guest speakers from business and community backgrounds.

The programme will enable you to develop positive and critical attitudes towards management and leadership, change and entrepreneurship, enabling you to respond positively to a dynamic, complex global environment. Alongside your study of the core disciplines, you will also have the opportunity to develop your interests and knowledge through options in a range of specialist areas, such as business analytics, family business, international negotiation or coaching.

In the final term, you will complete a major piece of work – either a dissertation, company-focused business project, or business start-up plan – that demonstrates your abilities in research, analysis and applying your knowledge in practice.

Your learning will be underpinned by practical preparation for a career in management and leadership with the help of our specialist careers advisers, and you will graduate with a portfolio of relevant professional knowledge and skills.

Key features

Individual attention from staff who combine academic credentials with varied experience in management

Strong emphasis on teamwork and practical, experience-based learning focused on management and leadership

MSc Digital Marketing & Analytics

Digital technology and analytics are changing the face of marketing. Five key trends will shape the future – social media, mobile technology, cloud computing, big data and data analytics. There are significant opportunities for practitioners who combine traditional marketing knowledge with the digital, analytical and social media expertise needed to harness ever-growing amounts of customer data.

The MSc Digital Marketing & Analytics will prepare you to be an effective marketing practitioner in the exciting, ever-changing business environment.

It bridges the gap between marketing and IT to produce graduates with solid digital and analytics skills, set within the context of marketing planning and strategy.

The programme is aimed at students who wish to work in any aspect of marketing, either client-side or agency, and who wish to acquire the technical expertise that marketers need today.

Technical and marketing skills are blended together in each module, rather than being treated separately. You will gain a practical overview of the key elements of digital marketing communications and be encouraged to work towards a Google Analytics Individual Qualification (GAIQ).

The programme will give you a deep understanding of digital marketing strategy, planning and control, together with the practical analytical skills needed in the new data-driven world.

You will explore the way that digital technology is altering consumer behaviour. You will also learn how to use data to construct a multi-dimensional view of customers that not only describes how they acted in the past but also predicts how they will behave in the future.

The programme will help you become a marketing professional who can communicate effectively with, and appreciate the challenges faced by, technical staff. It will also help you to master the quantitative analytics skills needed to conduct your own data analysis and evaluate analysis done by others.

Key features

Training in the technical skills that marketing professionals require now

A blend of technical and marketing skills in each module

Bridges the gap between traditional marketing techniques and the ever-evolving digital media landscape

In-depth look at how digital technology is shaping marketing operations across different industries

Certificates

The programme has been accredited by the Chartered Management Institute and the students will become eligible to receive a certificate for CMI Level 7 Diploma in Strategic Management and Leadership (7D1V1). Students will also become eligible to receive a joint Regent's/SAS certificate.

The programme is accredited by the Institute of Direct and Digital Marketing (IDM), offering you the opportunity to take the IDM Certificate in Digital Marketing without the need for additional study.

'Digital marketing offers an abundance of future job opportunities. I have learnt about the different tools, software and strategies used to optimise digital marketing. Most interesting were the workshops and guest speakers during class.'

Drishti Sugandi, Indonesia,
MSc Digital Marketing & Analytics

www.regents.ac.uk/drishti

Learning and assessment

We emphasise interaction and activity-based learning. Our staff are all active in the area of digital marketing and analytics, either as researchers or as practitioners.

You will work with digital experts to develop practical skills in analytics software such as SAS and SPSS, and with marketing managers and agency staff to develop your understanding of marketing decision-making in the real world.

Many assignments take the form of live briefs, enabling you to experience the kinds of projects that you will be working on as a marketing practitioner.

Attending industry events will give you a deeper understanding of the concerns of marketing practitioners and how the practical skills you are learning can be applied in a marketing department or agency.

Guest speakers further enhance the applied nature of the programme and help to develop your understanding of how digital marketing and analytics operates in the real world.

Future opportunities

Marketing is moving ever-further into the digital and mobile sphere, and there is a significant skills gap in the industry. Graduates who combine digital and analytics skills with a solid understanding of the creative side of marketing are in high demand for many different roles.

This qualification will make you very attractive to marketing employers and agencies, with opportunities in areas such as web analytics, social media, content marketing, mobile marketing, digital advertising and data analysis.

Entry requirements

A minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution.

MSc Finance with Specialisations

Finance plays a decisive role in the life of any entity – be it a person, family, business organisation or nation. Financial theory is being constantly updated to reflect the dynamic market reality. Financial market participants require an in-depth understanding of developments in order to offer flexible solutions to complex problems with profound implications beyond the financial realm.

This programme offers the rigorous academic and practical training required to meet the challenges of today's financial markets.

It provides the knowledge and tools to ensure that you are up to date with the latest developments in the industry, set within a practical business context.

The MSc will enable you to gain a breadth of critical understanding and analysis of different aspects of finance, together with the opportunity to specialise in one of three key areas: banking, risk management or trading.

You will learn to think from first principles, deal with financial issues and contribute to the formulation of finance-related strategies. You will be introduced to a range of contrasting theoretical perspectives and research, so as to develop the ability to critically analyse and interpret information across all aspects of international finance.

A particular feature of the programme is an emphasis on working within teams, enabling you to learn from the different experiences of your fellow students and develop the collaborative skills you will need for your future career.

We aim to simulate the real-life experience of working in finance, equipping you with both an academic and practical understanding of this diverse field. You will be using live data on the Thomson-Reuters platform and participating in real-life case studies presented to panels of capital market practitioners.

You will be taught by lecturers who combine high academic credentials with varied, real market, industry experience, and attend guest lectures by banking and finance professionals. You will also participate in Global Association of Risk Professionals (GARP) University Chapter meetings to hear first-hand accounts of the issues, challenges and solutions explored by today's financial market practitioners.

Key features

A focus on the international environment of banking and finance

Specialisations in banking, risk management and trading

Combines financial theory with practical, hands-on training

Individual attention from staff who combine academic credentials with varied, real-world market experience in banking and finance

Personalised careers support for your personal and professional development

Learning and assessment

The MSc will enable you to explore a range of contrasting theoretical perspectives and research models.

Teaching and learning methods include lectures, seminars, workshops, case-study analysis, group work, tutorials and self-directed study.

You will be assessed through a combination of written assignments, presentations, essays and examinations.

Future opportunities

A career in finance promises intellectual, personal and social challenges as well as rewards, both monetary and intellectual. This programme will give you the essential preparation for a career in the diverse world of finance.

Whether you aspire to become a private wealth manager in the City of London, a risk analyst on Wall Street or a treasurer in your family business, the MSc will give you the rigorous academic and practical training, plus the business and intercultural skills you need to succeed.

Entry requirements

A minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution.

Applicants with a degree in a non-business discipline must demonstrate relevant analytical and numerical experience and understanding through their personal statement.

'I wanted to get in-depth knowledge of the financial markets, and further understand the impact of financial markets within the global economy. I worked part-time during my studies as an analyst for a boutique investment firm. It gave me the opportunity to gain further experience and helped me to see how my studies had practical implications in the world of work.'

MSc Oil & Gas Trade Management

Today's energy sector demands talented, highly trained individuals who can demonstrate leadership, strategic thinking and the ability to manage risk in complex business situations. This is a specialist programme, focusing on the 'downstream' side of the industry to prepare you as a professional in the management of trade in oil and gas products.

The MSc Oil & Gas Trade Management explores the process of trade in oil and gas products from the perspectives of both buyer and seller. It has been designed in consultation with oil and gas industry leaders to ensure its relevance to industry needs.

The programme will enable you to develop the practical problem-solving skills needed for success in a growth industry. It will also raise your awareness of corporate social responsibility and the environmental, sustainability and social issues involved.

Our staff team offers a well-balanced mix of academic expertise, active research interests and industry experience at managerial and executive level.

You will hear from prestigious guest lecturers and work on projects using live databases – such as Thomson-Reuters, Shipping Intelligence Network and CQG Trader – to devise solutions to real energy-sector issues.

You will be eligible for free or discounted one-year associate membership of the Energy Institute, Westminster Energy Forum and the Chartered Management Institute.

Your career development will be supported by dedicated internal and external career advisers and coaches who specialise in the oil and gas sectors.

Key features

Specialist programme offering the professional skills for success in a growth industry worldwide

Unique focus on the 'downstream' side of the oil and gas industry

Based in London, the prime energy market location in the UK

An emphasis on practical learning through projects based on real data

Strong industry links for learning, networking and career development

Programme content

This is a full-time programme, covering three terms. Three key themes of risk management, strategy and 'value added' are woven throughout the programme.

If you start in September, you will study the following modules. If you start in January, you will study all the same modules, but the order in which you study them may differ slightly. Please contact us for further information.

Film, Media & Performance

Film, Media & Performance at Regent's is a vibrant and imaginative arena for those who wish to turn their creativity and experience into a strong set of vocational skills. We offer a unique postgraduate educational experience, taking the established Regent's ethos of internationalism and the highest-quality learning opportunities and applying this in particular to the screen and theatre industries.

In a new climate of popular creativity and ready accessibility to audiences, the modern postgraduate creative degree is no longer a traditional study of culture and society, but must look to the industry it serves to guide and shape the creative individuals of tomorrow.

Our two-year part-time MA a master's programme by writers for writers, its benefits include:

Writing for two markets: screen and stage
Working at your own pace, when and where you want to
One-to-one script tutoring from eight professional writers
Five individual intensive weeks' tuition in London
Actors workshopping your scripts
Public theatre performances of your work
Cinema screenings and free London theatre visits
Fast development and growth as a writer

London as your classroom

London is a creative and cultural hub, at the heart of global media and home to hundreds of screen production companies and TV channels, theatres and performance platforms, from the small and ambitious to the world-renowned.

You will be ideally placed to gain from developing your writing at the centre of this world, and to bring the unique cultural and commercial resources of this city and its creative energy into your work.

A world of creative opportunity

The performance industries – more than any other – are always hungry for new and original thinking, talent and people. If you are a promising individual with the potential and determination to make your mark, or if you have spent a long time working in an industry where you feel your true talent is not being used or explored, we look forward to helping to develop your skills and finding a creative outlet and an alternative future.

Employment prospects in the performance industries are growing rapidly. For those wishing to create work for the screen, we now have a world where there are hundreds of digital channels at our fingertips and the latest Hollywood blockbusters can be enjoyed on a smartphone during the morning commute.

The opportunities are there for the stage too. Small and medium-sized theatres are constantly hunting for new material, with live performances and musicals enjoying huge popularity in thousands of venues.

In addition, as technological developments integrate entertainment and the media ever-more seamlessly into our lives, new talent is in constant demand to create engaging content across both traditional and developing digital and online media.

Industry contact

Our industry links mean your work will reflect the live briefs normally commissioned and evaluated by companies looking for new projects and ideas.

Our central London location offers a great opportunity to gain invaluable practical work experience at TV, film and theatre production companies in the heart of London's media-land.

The Regent's Arts Season, held each spring, is a showcase for the creativity of students and staff at the University. A wide range of art forms are on display, including film, photography, theatre and music. It is a great opportunity to get creative, with performances, exhibitions, seminars and hands-on activities to suit everyone.

Many live events take place at the University's stunning 120-seat Marylebone Theatre, including drama performances and the annual fashion show.

London Screenwriters' Festival

Regent's hosts the annual London Screenwriters' Festival, which comprises more than 100 different events, including seminars, workshops, screenings, debates, speed-pitching sessions and other activities. Keynote speakers have included David Reynolds, (Finding Nemo), Edgar Wright (Hot Fuzz), Joel Schumacher (Falling Down) and Lynda La Plante (Prime Suspect). The event attracts hundreds of people and presents an excellent opportunity for our students to meet leading film industry figures.

Creative and commercial skills

We aim to foster a strong, creative work ethic. We will give you intensive, focused training that encompasses a broad range of skills, with key specialisations in your chosen field.

Working individually and in groups, you will originate projects and learn to build on the natural group dynamics at the heart of the film, television and theatre industries. These study methods enable you to develop your creative skills, expertise and confidence fast.

As well as fostering your creative development, we aim to help you develop the essential business and personal skills you will need to succeed in the fast-paced creative industries.

Industry-focused events and guest speakers from the worlds of film and TV throughout the year enable you to network with working professionals.

Sessions with key industry figures

The School has hosted discussions with key industry figures, such as Hollywood film director Mike Newell, pictured right (Four Weddings and a Funeral, Donnie Brasco, Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire), Garth Unwin (producer of The King's Speech), Himesh Kar (consultant producer of Man on Wire, Brick Lane and The Wind that Shakes the Barley) and film writer Adrian Hodges (The Bridge, My Week with Marilyn and The Musketeers).

'The events and festivals held at Regent's augment our studies and provide a further incentive to stretch ourselves as writers. The opportunity to network with similarly interested people and expand our contacts makes these events a very useful addition to our course.'

Meg Jefferies, UK,
MA Writing for Screen & Stage

Meet the Faculty

Our teaching staff combine academic credentials with extensive professional experience of writing for TV, film and stage, bringing this knowledge, talent and experience to the teaching of new writers, directors and media practitioners.

David Hanson

Head of Programme

MA Writing for Screen & Stage

David has had a successful career as a scriptwriter, working on projects that have won BAFTA, Ace and Golden Rose of Montreux awards. He has written for ground-breaking television comedy series such as the BBC's Not the Nine O'Clock News and worked with acclaimed performers such as Lenny Henry and David Walliams. David has also scripted US television and film projects at ABC, HBO and Universal Pictures.

John Foster

Visiting Lecturer

John Foster has published fiction in the Guardian and Spectator and written for radio and the theatre. His screen credits include many episodes for TV series such as Z-Cars, Softly Softly, Crown Court, Emmerdale, Juliet Bravo, Rockliffe and The Bill. He has written children's serials, single dramas and dramadocs, including a BAFTA award-winning BBC Omnibus on the American crime novelist Raymond Chandler. The movie of his screenplay Letters from a Killer featured Patrick Swayze in the lead role and he is contributor to the award-winning crime fiction collection, Mean Time. John has written multi-media dance dramas and his play Little Boy was staged at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival. He is currently working on plays for theatre and is the Artistic Director of Doppelganger Productions, a Bournemouth-based theatre production company committed to new writing and community engagement.

Phil Hughes

Course Leader

MA Writing for Screen & Stage

Phil began working in film development as Head of Fiction for an EU programme funding projects across 14 countries. He is a freelance writer for film and television, with two feature films and a number of TV credits to his name. He has worked with producers in the UK and Hollywood, and developed scripts for Fox and Paramount. Recently Phil has worked with the Script Factory, the ScriptEast programme and the Four Corners script development workshop.

Margaret Glover

Visiting Lecturer

Margaret Glover holds a Master of Fine Arts in Dramaturgy and Dramatic Criticism from Yale School of Drama, where she worked with playwrights Athol Fugard and August Wilson, along with her peers, including Lynn Nottage. During her 10 years in UK television, Margaret produced and script edited award-winning children's programming, prime-time single dramas and her own original series SNAP, which ran for three seasons on CITV. Her feature film credits include festival award-winners Blackbird (Jamie Chambers, 2013) as executive producer and Shadows in the Sun (David Rocksavage, 2009) as screenwriter. She is currently in development on a slate of low-budget first features as producer and continues to work as development executive, script editor and co-writer with established producers, writers and directors.

Line Langebek

Lecturer in Screenwriting

Line Langebek has worked as a commissioned writer on feature films and shorts in the UK, US, France, Denmark and Norway. She also has extensive experience as a freelance script consultant, as well as a translator and subtitler for film and television. Her film credits include the US feature film I'll Come Running (starring Melonie Diaz), the Channel 4-drama Sink or Swim, Echoes (starring Joanne Froggatt), the Albanian-set documentary feature Duam Dritë: We Want Light and the recent BFI-funded Field Study with director Eva Weber. She is currently working on several feature film and TV projects.

Diane Samuels

Visiting Lecturer

Diane Samuels' career as an author and playwright spans 20 years, starting with her award-winning play Kindertransport which continues to be read, taught and produced all over the world. She writes for stage, radio and experimental theatre across art forms, and has recently collaborated with composers to create two full-length musicals. As Pearson Creative Research Fellow 2005 at the British Library, Diane produced A Writer's Magic Notebook, and her author's guide, Diane Samuels' Kindertransport, is an in-depth account of the process of writing and producing the play.

Mark Hamilton

Senior Lecturer in World Stages (Non-Western Practice)

Mark studied Drama and Theatre Arts at the University of Birmingham (UK) to MPhil level, and completed his PhD in Theatre and Film Studies at the University of Canterbury (NZ). His career has included creation of new works for the international festival circuit and for broadcast on the Maori Television Service. His research explores connections and distinctions between Western realist drama and Indian and Polynesian aesthetics. His theoretical frameworks use performance ethnography to expand concepts of dramatic form, and to consider how theatricality informs today's civil life and modern media.

Anna Jones

Visiting Lecturer

Anna trained at Cambridge University and the Yale School of Drama and specialises in directing new writing and devising theatre. She has directed work by Alena Smith, Tarell McCraney, Suzy Almond and Stella Feehily and scripted numerous collaborative projects, most recently The Brooklyn Bumpkin and At the World's Edge, funded by the Arts Council England. Anna co-founded NYLon Projects to create innovative theatre in New York and London and has taught at LAMDA and The National Theatre.

Ben Musgrave

Visiting Lecturer

Ben's play Pretend You Have Big Buildings won first prize in the inaugural Bruntwood Prize in 2006. The play was performed in the main house of the Royal Exchange Theatre, Manchester. He has since written plays for the National Theatre, Y Touring, Only Connect and the Birmingham Repertory Theatre. His most recent play, His Teeth, was performed at Only Connect in 2011, and was nominated for an off-West End award for best new play. His play for Radio 4, The British Club, was broadcast in 2012. Ben was on attachment to the National Theatre Studio in 2013 and he is currently under commission to The Big House. He is also a visiting lecturer in creative writing at Westminster University.

MA Writing for Screen & Stage – Overview

London is the world centre for television, film and theatre production. Thousands of screen and stage productions are commissioned and performed in London each year, and the cornerstone of every one of these productions is the script. No actor commits to a project, no locations are selected or sets built, no studios are booked, no deals struck and no seats sold without a script.

An ability to write imaginatively, an understanding of script demands and an instinct for story quality and potential are essential for the successful scriptwriter.

You also need the skills to develop ideas into fully fledged production-ready manuscripts and the creative range to frame your best script as a marketable product.

These factors are at the heart of film, television and theatrical output, and all are at the centre of this programme. It will help you to develop the writing skills essential for the screen industry and the theatre, and gain paid writing commissions for television, stage and film.

You will explore storytelling and the origins of drama, narrative structure, character function and creation, exploitation of arena and decisions on location, and key narrative tricks and devices.

You will start by writing short scripts for both screen and stage, before moving on to adapting a short story twice – once for the screen and once for the stage.

You will analyse a favourite movie or play and, with tutorials, write a dissertation on it, to become a specialist and expert on a major production.

You will build a screenplay around a location of your choice, and write a play examining an issue you feel needs public attention.

To aid your development as a writer, with each of your scripts (and you will write a number of them) you will craft an analysis of its creative development. You will learn to write professional script reports.

If in the later stages of the degree you choose to specialise in screen, your study will culminate in the creation of a feature-length film screenplay. If you choose to specialise in theatre, you will write a full-length play or performance text.

You will learn how to convert ideas into a saleable product, and how to market your work and deal with business issues. You will gain the confidence to take control in relationships with directors, actors and agents.

Key features

Unique combination of intensive and distance learning

The flexibility to develop your writing in your own time and at your own pace – where and when it suits you

Continuing professional guidance and support from expert tutors

A sense of community with other like-minded and enthusiastic writers

How does it work?

This degree is unique in that it is taught by a mix of intensive attendance weeks on campus and distance-tutoring, when you work at home developing your scripts as if on commission, with telephone or Skype guidance from your tutor.

The five one-week attendances include lectures, seminars, workshops, screenings, discussions, individual and group activities and one-to-one tutorials. You will also prepare the script commissions that you take away to work on.

This combination offers you the intensity and shared learning of working in a group with fellow writers, as well as the advantage of being able to develop your writing at your own pace and to suit other personal and professional commitments.

Location

'I was drawn to the professional experience of the course tutors, as I felt this was more useful in a practical subject. I wanted to learn the craft, although I valued the theoretical foundations of the course content too. Each module has also been carefully structured to ensure student progress is linear and relevant.'

MA Writing for Screen & Stage – Programme

This part-time, flexible-learning programme will help you develop the scriptwriting skills essential for the screen industry and the theatre. You will explore the art of storytelling, the Aristotelian origins of drama, narrative structure, character function and creation, the exploitation of arena, decisions on location and key narrative tricks and devices.

Programme content

The degree is divided into three stages, each comprising seven months of study.

Stage 1

You will undertake three modules in sequence to develop your writing skills, with two on-campus weeks.

Short Scripts

Adapted Scripts

Production Case Study

Stage 2

You will be writing more substantial scripts as your work builds in length and complexity. Again you have two on-campus weeks.

Observational Research Screenplay

Thematic Research Play

Stage 3

You will specialise in screen or theatre, and have one on-campus week. This last stage combines the guided creation of your major script and an in-depth case study of a screen or theatre production of your choice.

Analysis of Scripts

Major Project Screenplay OR Major Project Stage Play

Future opportunities

Whether you wish to develop an alternative career as a professional writer, already write for pleasure, or have ideas that you want to turn into scripts for theatre or screen performance, this programme will help you to realise your ambitions.

You will develop transferable script skills that can be deployed in all areas of origination and creative analysis. Your studies will enhance your employment prospects in a wide and varied industry – not only as a writer for television, theatre or film, but also as a script editor, reader, developer, producer, director, agent or distributor.

Entry requirements

The minimum entry qualification is generally an Honours degree from a UK university, or a qualification deemed to be equivalent by the Head of Programme. However some students who apply have sufficient experience of life to turn into scripts that an audience would find original, appealing and watchable, and therefore each application will be judged on its individual merits.

We ask you to submit a sample of your creative writing and attend an interview, which is a two-way discussion about the programme and how suitable it might be for you.

The writing sample may be any length or any type – anything from full-length screen or stage plays to short excerpts, books or parts of books, articles, essays, simple self-penned reflections or even poetry. It is not necessary to have completed a portfolio of work – we are looking for evidence of potential that can be developed through the programme.

All decisions on acceptance of candidates are made by the programme team, who have a huge amount of relevant experience and expertise.

'I had been planning to write screenplays for years, but never found the motivation. It felt liberating to actually be writing scripts. I learnt in great detail how the mechanics of storytelling work, sharing the experience with other like-minded individuals.'

Chris Amos, UK,
MA Writing for Screen & Stage

Fashion & Design

Fashion is a worldwide phenomenon, playing a dynamic role in modern popular and consumer culture. New entrants to the fashion industry need a mix of motivation, talent, education and experience in order to succeed. Postgraduate Diploma in Fashion Buying & Merchandising

Buying and merchandising are the specialist retail functions that lie at the heart of a fashion brand's ability to respond effectively to fast-changing fashion trends. Buyers and merchandisers are responsible for creating ranges and ensuring profitable sales. The ability to forecast and react to trends and changes in demand is vital to the roles.

Buyers and merchandisers must adapt new ideas and inspiration in developing fashion ranges in order to satisfy consumers' increasingly sophisticated demands. They need a strong eye for emerging fashion trends and the ability to make quick commercial decisions when developing seasonal collections.

This new postgraduate diploma is designed for fashion and non-fashion graduates who want to begin or progress a career in fashion buying and merchandising. Over two terms you will develop the necessary specialist fashion knowledge, skills, commercial understanding and industry insights to prepare you for a range of positions in buying and merchandising.

The programme offers a rich learning experience with live projects, industry lecturers, fashion shoots and other industry-relevant activities.

You will learn how fashion trends emerge, how market gaps can be exploited, and how to plan, source and produce fashion ranges. As well as building your knowledge of textiles and clothing manufacture, this diploma will strengthen your skills in teamwork, communication, negotiation and numeracy in specific buying and merchandising contexts.

Our central London location, a few minutes' walk from Oxford Street, makes you ideally placed to study the trading activities of major fashion brands and retailers. You will explore how buying and merchandising roles operate and integrate with other retail functions, such as design, marketing and retail management.

For your final project, you will work as part of a team on a typical fashion buying and merchandising brief that allows you to apply the knowledge you have gained and demonstrate your analytical, problem-solving, communication, organisational and negotiation skills.

You will have contact with our Careers & Business Relations team throughout the programme, preparing you to go into industry on graduation.

Key features

Specialist, vocational programme for non-fashion graduates

Central London location close to major fashion brands and retailers

Expert staff who have worked as fashion buyers or merchandisers for large fashion retailers

Industry contact through field trips and seminars with visiting industry experts

Programme content

You will study the following modules:

Term 1

Buying and Merchandising

Fashion Cultures: History, Theory, Creativity

Introduction to Textiles and Product Manufacturing

Professional and Employability Skills 1

Term 2

Marketing and Distribution

Professional and Employability Skills 2

Sustainability and Ethics in Fashion

Final Project: Trading and Response to Change

Location

Learning and assessment

You will be taught by staff with wide-ranging academic and industry experience of fashion buying and merchandising. Teaching methods include lectures, seminars, tutorials, guest speakers, workshops and external visits (eg to a buying office and manufacturer or wholesaler). There is a gradual move towards more self-directed and independent learning in the final stages of the programme, particularly in the final project.

You will be assessed through a mix of individual and group assessments, including essays, reports, presentations, a portfolio, team project and written reflections.

Future opportunities

This programme will give you the specialist knowledge, skills, commercial understanding and industry insights to pursue a career in fashion buying and merchandising. It will prepare you for entry-level jobs in the industry, such as buying assistant, trainee merchandiser, allocator and distributor.

Entry requirements

A minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK Honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution. You do not need to have studied fashion to join this programme. Ideally your first degree will not be in a purely practice-based subject (with the exception of fashion design or textiles). Applicants should also have completed GCSE mathematics or equivalent at grade C or above.

“This course is particularly great as fashion businesses are increasingly looking for a buying and merchandising qualification from graduates who have degrees from other disciplines. This never used to be the case.”

Caren Downie,
former buying director for ASOS and Topshop

Postgraduate Diploma in Fashion Journalism

Fashion media are experiencing explosive growth worldwide in response to the dynamic role of fashion in modern popular and consumer culture. Magazines and digital media demand well-trained fashion journalists with an understanding of context, history and trends.

Fashion journalists need highly specific skills in writing, visual appreciation and technical knowledge of fashion. They must combine understanding of fashion history with an eye for tomorrow's trends. Today's journalists must also be versatile writers, capable of working across a wide variety of print and digital media.

On our innovative postgraduate diploma you will build core journalistic skills in researching, interviewing, writing and editing, learning how to adapt your work to a variety of media channels. This qualification is particularly aimed at graduates who don't have a fashion qualification but are passionate about fashion and keen to develop a journalism career in fashion media.

The programme aims to generate new thinking about fashion journalism, examining and analysing all new forms of communication – including social media, blogging and branded content – while also championing the importance of traditional skills in writing and editing.

It takes an in-depth look at the opportunities and challenges of digital fashion media, giving you the confidence to work across established and emerging forms of communication.

You will also develop your eye for design, understanding of fashion heritage, knowledge of textiles and manufacturing, and awareness of sustainability and ethical issues in contemporary fashion.

In your final project, you will create a portfolio or showcase, either in print or online, displaying what you have learnt and achieved.

You will have the opportunity to work on live projects and assessments related to industry practices. You will also work with our Careers & Business Relations team to prepare you for graduation and employment.

Key features

A strong vocational focus, based on practical knowledge of how the fashion industry and fashion media operate today

Expert tutors and guest speakers with substantial experience in all aspects of fashion journalism

Training in traditional journalistic skills, including writing and editing

Exploration of the specific demands of digital media and branded content opportunities

A focus on the background and heritage that make for informed fashion journalism

Programme content

You will study the following modules:

Term 1

Contemporary Journalism: Approaches and Skills

Fashion Cultures: History, Theory, Creativity

Introduction to Textiles and Product Manufacturing

Professional and Employability Skills 1

Term 2

New Ideas in Digital Media

Professional and Employability Skills 2

Sustainability and Ethics in Fashion

Final Project: Fashion Futures

'Fashion journalism is fiercely competitive. This excellent course provides the right tools to stand out from the crowd.'

Charlie Byrne, fashion writer,
The Times

Learning and assessment

You will be taught by staff who have worked, or are still working, as fashion journalists, learning through a combination of focused seminars, practical experience and tutorial support. You will work on your own and in groups, moving towards more independent study in your final project.

The programme takes full advantage of our central London location, with field trips and guest speakers from the fashion media industry, ranging from leading broadsheets and magazines to experimental websites.

Future opportunities

This programme will open doors to a career in fashion journalism, including both print and digital media. You will be prepared to work in the fashion industry as a writer and editor in all capacities, from e-commerce content creation to copywriting for PR, marketing and branded content.

A strong focus on professional and employability skills will prepare you to apply for fashion media jobs anywhere in the world.

Entry requirements

A minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK Honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution. Ideally the first degree will not be in a purely practice-based subject (with the exception of fashion design or textiles).

MA International Human Rights Law

Human rights issues have never been so pertinent, and expertise in this area never in such demand. This unique programme will give you an in-depth understanding of people's struggles to overcome persecution and prejudice throughout history and across the world. In doing so, it will enable you to address contemporary challenges in environments that aim to protect and promote human rights.

Human rights and international law have been at the heart of teaching and scholarly work at Regent's for many years. This innovative postgraduate programme – developed in collaboration with the renowned human rights barrister Geoffrey Robertson QC, of Doughty Street Chambers – examines some of the key challenges in the field of international human rights.

The programme informs those already in professional practice, or aspiring to work in this field, with the knowledge and skills to introduce changes that will improve human rights policies at an international, regional and domestic level.

You will explore a range of topics, including the history of human rights law, international relations, humanitarian intervention, free speech, prohibition of torture and inhumane treatment and international criminal law. All theoretical learning is supplemented by cutting-edge research and case studies.

Identifying and critically evaluating contemporary issues relating to international human rights will help you to interpret source materials and understand relevant concepts, cases, statutes and treaties.

This programme is unique in its close link with practising professionals and real-life cases, allowing you to examine and understand what's happening in the world today. In addition to our in-house team, you will benefit from expert guest lecturers addressing a range of related topics.

Key features

A systematic and comprehensive programme, giving students a broad and deep knowledge of international human rights law

Exposure to world-renowned human rights lawyers who bring the subject to life by sharing their knowledge and experience of working on landmark cases in the field

Distinguished guest lecturers providing expert analysis of a wide range of topics

Extensive use of current and relevant case studies to help students develop an understanding of how theory relates to practice

Expert staff across two University faculties with wide practical and academic experience

Programme content

Learning and assessment

You will be taught by a talented team of internationally diverse academics and practitioners with vast experience both within and outside academia. The programme incorporates experiential learning, with outside activity complementing work in class.

Methods of assessment will include individual presentations, essays, research proposals, group presentation assignments and reports, and a dissertation of up to 15,000 words.

Future opportunities

This MA will prepare you for a range of careers in areas including diplomacy, international relations, domestic and international legal practice, international charities, and non-governmental organisations, as well as professions such as law, journalism, politics and economics.

Please note that you will only be able to undertake legal practice if you also undertake other appropriate legal qualifications.

Entry requirements

Bachelor's degree with a minimum 2.5 (out of 4.0) cumulative grade point average, or its equivalent (e.g. 2:2 degree). All prospective students are also required to undertake an interview at the application stage. You should also have attained a minimum of a C in maths and English at GCSE level or equivalent.

The programme is suitable for students who are progressing directly, or with minimal experience, from undergraduate degrees in areas including human rights, international relations, political science and related humanities or liberal arts disciplines.

It may also appeal to those with some experience in the field, such as journalists and other media professionals, professionals working in NGOs, the voluntary sector, diplomats and others working in related areas of human rights and international relations.

MA International Relations

War and peace, strategy and diplomacy are still at the heart of world affairs. However, human rights, climate change and the environment, migration, globalisation, global civil society, terrorism and many other newer issues present more complex and intriguing challenges for the future. This MA will give you a deep analytical understanding of International Relations past and present, and awareness of global politics from a broad range of perspectives.

This MA programme examines the complexities and processes involved in world affairs, preparing you for an exciting career in the fast-moving and uncertain world of global politics.

You will explore and analyse the relationships between states, international institutions, international non-governmental organisations (INGOs) and non-state operators. Taking an interdisciplinary approach to your studies, you will examine historical examples and theories from international relations and related areas, including international political economy, sociology, psychology and history.

We aim to help you acquire and develop your analytical skills as well as the abilities to research independently and work in groups. Throughout your studies you will be encouraged to turn theory into practice, applying your learning to real-life situations and developing practical policy solutions.

You will have opportunities to participate in conferences, take part in the Model United Nations, attend seminars given by high-profile figures in international politics, academia, human rights and the media, or attend a humanitarian conference in Geneva.

You can also make use of the wealth of resources that London has to offer. For example students are eligible for an exclusive discounted membership to the Royal Institute of International Affairs, Chatham House, with its captivating meetings and rich academic resources. The British Library's vast collection is also nearby.

Psychotherapy & Psychology

Regent's is a leading training institution for psychology, counselling, psychotherapy and counselling psychology. We have a reputation for innovation and critical thinking in these fields. Our academic staff are invited to speak worldwide and our students are drawn from across the globe.

We aim to develop professionals who think independently, are theoretically well-informed and able to work skilfully and ethically in a variety of professional settings.

Our academics possess a depth and diversity of professional experience and have been at the forefront of innovative teaching developments and programmes.

Our MA Psychotherapy & Counselling was the first in the UK, and we were also the first UK institution to offer a PhD in Psychotherapy & Counselling Studies.

Alongside psychology, psychotherapy and counselling, we are also a leading provider of training in mediation and conflict resolution.

Diversity of disciplines and approaches

We encourage academic rigour while honouring the experiential and interpersonal encounter, and foster competence to meet the professional challenges of a rapidly evolving field. Our postgraduate programmes are geared to enhancing knowledge helpful to a range of careers.

We espouse a non-doctrinaire, integrative attitude throughout our programmes. Rather than promote a single approach, we teach a range of theoretical perspectives, covering existential, psychoanalytic, humanistic and integrative approaches.

You will be exposed to contrasting views in an open and constructively critical arena. We encourage all our students to develop a solid understanding of these different views so as to be able to make informed choices when it comes to their own professional careers and practice.

A supportive learning environment

Our programmes are both demanding and enjoyable. We believe it is through a spirit of questioning and critical inquiry that worthwhile results are achieved, and you can be sure of a challenging, intense and rewarding experience.

Seminar and group sizes are carefully set according to the type of learning activity. We take care to provide a supportive learning environment to facilitate the personally challenging nature of these professions.

Training for professional accreditation

We offer a range of programmes, from foundation level to bachelors', masters' and doctoral degrees, as well as professional development courses for both personal and career advancement.

Our programmes offer seamless training routes. You can enter as a beginner, and continue all the way to professional qualification and doctoral level, with no need to find another institution to complete your training.

Regent's is an organisational and accrediting member of the United Kingdom Council for Psychotherapy (UKCP) and our programmes lead to professional membership of that body.

They also contribute towards individual accreditation with the British Association for Counselling & Psychotherapy (BACP) and meet the requirements of the British Psychological Society (BPS) and Health & Care Professions Council (HCPC).

Certificate in Psychotherapy & Counselling

This course offers a solid grounding in psychotherapy and counselling theory and skills. It combines academic, practical and experiential components within a supportive and challenging environment. You will examine the main therapeutic theories as well as exploring philosophical and spiritual perspectives and cross-cultural approaches.

The Certificate in Psychotherapy & Counselling will build your understanding of a range of psychotherapy and counselling theories, with a focus on existential, psychodynamic and humanistic/integrative perspectives. Cognitive/behavioural approaches are also considered.

You will be introduced to the practical and ethical issues of working with clients in a variety of situations, and develop your competence in essential communication and counselling skills.

Your studies will encourage you to examine your beliefs, assumptions and prejudices in order to help others do the same. The course will also develop your capacity to reflect on your own interpersonal and emotional processes, patterns and experiences.

You will learn to apply academic theory in practice, benefiting from skills practice sessions and self-development group work.

As well as providing a solid background for those wishing to apply for further professional training, the course offers those who already work in the helping professions the opportunity to develop their interpersonal skills.

modules)

Summer Intensive

July to August (five weeks full-time)

Autumn Intensive

September to November/December (week and weekend modules)

Sessions last from 10:00–17:00 each day. For current information on start dates, please see our website.

For module descriptions, visit us online
www.regents.ac.uk/study

Next steps

Successful completion of the Certificate in Psychotherapy & Counselling will enable you to meet one of the main entry requirements for the MA Psychotherapy & Counselling (see page 70). Direct progression to the MA will depend on your academic background and professional/voluntary experience.

Entry requirements

Applicants do not need to have a first degree or its equivalent. We require life experience, a mature attitude and a capacity for self-reflection. Previous counselling training or experience is not necessary. Admissions interviews are conducted in groups.

Please apply online at www.regents.ac.uk/apply

In addition to your application, you will need to supply one reference, which can be either academic or professional.

How can I find out more?

We hold informal advisory meetings for the Certificate in Psychotherapy & Counselling once a month on a weekday evening, from 17:30–18:30. For more information, please see our website or call +44 (0)20 7487 7505.

‘The programme was well-rounded and we were given a thorough intellectual understanding of each different theoretical approach. The teaching staff are clearly all experienced practitioners and are not biased towards their own approaches/opinions.’

Alia Butt, UK,
Certificate in Psychotherapy & Counselling

MA Psychotherapy & Counselling

The MA in Psychotherapy & Counselling leads to a high level of qualification (level 7 of higher education) and includes taught, clinical, experiential and self-directed components. It gives you a broad knowledge of psychotherapy theories and includes a year of supervised client practice.

The MA Psychotherapy & Counselling will give you a broad knowledge of theories of psychotherapy and the work of key historical and contemporary figures.

It will prepare you for psychotherapy practice by developing your skills in the safe environment of the classroom. You will learn to apply your theoretical knowledge and acquired skills in an approved clinical placement under the supervision of experienced practitioners in both the placement and at the School.

The programme will enable you to develop your individual approach to the practice of psychotherapy and counselling. You will be encouraged to develop a capacity for self-insight gained through personal therapy, and will undertake ongoing self-evaluation and reflection on the personal beliefs and prejudices that may affect your clinical practice.

Learning methods include tutorials, group work, independent study, engagement with your own therapeutic experience, and clinical practice guided by experienced professionals. You must remain in once-weekly individual psychotherapy with a UKCP member therapist throughout your training.

You will also be trained in research methods and carry out an in-depth investigation into a relevant topic.

Programme content

You will take the following modules:

Clinical Placement
Contemporary Theory and Practice in Existential Psychotherapy
Contemporary Theory and Practice in Integrative Psychotherapy
Contemporary Theory and Practice in Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy
Existential-Phenomenological Approaches
Humanistic and Integrative Approaches
Psychoanalytic Approaches
Research Methods in Psychotherapy

Clinical placements

Placements begin in the second year of the programme, and require at least half a day (usually more) each week, both during and outside term time. You will need to gather at least 100 supervised client contact hours as a requirement for completion of the programme.

Our clinical placements coordinator and the University's Careers & Business Relations team will advise you on finding a clinical placement.

Training options

The taught components of the programme extend over two academic years, leading to the Postgraduate Diploma. You then have up to a year after this to complete your dissertation if you wish to qualify for the MA.

You will have contact tuition time each term of at least six hours per week, and should allow additional time for independent study, research and essay preparation.

There are three intakes each year:

January

Wednesdays, 10:00–17:00

May

Tuesdays, 10:00–17:00

September

Thursdays, 10:00–17:00 OR

Fridays, 10:00–17:00

Next steps

Upon completion of the programme you will be eligible to progress to one of our Advanced Diploma courses in integrative or existential psychotherapy (see pages 76–79), which is the final stage of training that leads to eligibility for UKCP membership.

Entry requirements

For candidates with a bachelor's degree (in any discipline) we require at least six months' work experience in an allied area (such as nursing, social work, teaching, human resources or mediation) or in a voluntary capacity in a helping or supportive context (such as befriending, mentoring or telephone helpline counselling). You will need to have successfully completed an introductory certificate course in psychotherapy/ counselling of at least 120 hours.

If you do not have an undergraduate degree you will need to show evidence of at least two years' professional or voluntary experience in a supportive role where using communication skills was paramount to the work.

Experience of personal therapy is desirable, but not required.

Please apply online at www.regents.ac.uk/apply

In addition to your application, you will need to supply:

- Details of your professional/voluntary work experience
- Two references, one of which should be from your previous course leader or equivalent (please see the website for official reference forms for this programme).

'I am working towards becoming a psychotherapist. I've gained an in-depth insight into various psychotherapeutic theories, and had practical experience with different therapeutic skills and group work.'

MSc Occupational & Organisational Psychology

This programme focuses on psychological processes in the workplace and the practical skills required for professional practice and business. Drawing on current and historical theory and research, it will enable you to understand and predict behaviour in work environments, and develop ways of improving outcomes within organisations.

The MSc Occupational & Organisational Psychology was one of the first master's programmes in the UK to be based on the new curriculum of the British Psychological Society (BPS). It is designed for both psychology and non-psychology graduates.

The programme covers the key knowledge areas of occupational psychology stipulated by the BPS, including training and development, psychological assessment, employee well-being, leadership and motivation, work design, organisational change and professional practice.

You will learn how to apply theory and research to real organisational issues to improve workplace outcomes or employee behaviour and well-being, working to professional ethical standards.

The programme covers the industry-relevant technical skills you will need, such as how to conduct a job analysis, write a business proposal or compile a personality profile. It will also help you to develop essential communication skills for working with people, and give you greater personal insight, enabling you to achieve personal development and growth during your studies.

A particular feature of the programme is a one-month internship/placement undertaken within the human resource function of an organisation. This experience will enable you to develop your practical and professional skills, as well as giving you first-hand experience of implementing theory in practice. Our specialist careers advisers will help you in finding a placement (see page 20).

You will also have the opportunity to obtain additional qualifications alongside your studies, such as becoming an Accredited Mediator and a Qualified Test User*.

Key features

Industry-relevant programme based on the curriculum of the British Psychological Society

One month professional internship/placement

Applied training in research, technical and interpersonal skills

Optional training opportunity in mediation and conflict resolution

Expert staff across two University faculties, with wide practical and academic experience

Programme content

This is a one-year, full-time programme, covering three terms. You will study the following core modules:

Term 1

Learning, Training and Development

Psychological Assessment at Work

Wellbeing at Work

Term 2

Leadership, Engagement and Motivation

Research Methods

Work Design, Organisational Change and Development

Term 3

Professional Practice

Learning and assessment

You will be taught by occupational psychologists and organisational behaviour specialists who are active in their field, bringing current industry experience to the classroom.

Teaching methods include seminar-based lectures, seminar activities, guest lectures, student-led discussions, case study analysis, and other interactive methods of learning. Your learning will be enriched by small class sizes, the attention of a personal tutor and careers support.

Assessment is varied and includes theoretical and practical elements of the programme. You will be assessed on your technical and communication skills (for example, how well you write a business proposal or articulate your ideas in a presentation) as well as the research skills demonstrated through your dissertation.

Future opportunities

Successful completion of this programme will give you the professional skills necessary for entry to industry, as well as a network for future support in your career.

You will be equipped to work for organisations of all sizes in a variety of human resources roles, such as management, learning and development, recruitment and personnel, and talent management.

You will also be able to work as an external consultant, independent practitioner, or as a researcher. The additional qualifications of Accredited Mediator and Qualified Test User will enable you to offer something unique in the industry, giving you a competitive advantage.

Successfully completing this degree will enable you to progress to Stage 2 training, provided that you also have a degree that makes you eligible for Graduate Basis for Chartered (GBC) Membership with the BPS. If you do not have a degree that confers eligibility for GBC, Regent's University London offers the MSc Psychology (Conversion), accredited by the BPS.

Entry requirements

An undergraduate degree with a minimum of classification of 2:2.

MSc Psychology

This programme is for graduates who wish to enhance an existing degree with a qualification recognised by the British Psychological Society (BPS). It offers a thorough grounding in psychology and research to ensure you have the knowledge and skills to begin a career in your chosen field of psychology.

The MSc Psychology (Conversion) is designed for graduates with degrees in subjects other than psychology (or psychology degrees that are not accredited by the BPS) who wish to pursue a career in psychology and who are looking for an accredited degree in psychology. It is also suitable for people who wish to change the direction of their career.

The degree is accredited by the British Psychological Society. On successful completion, you will be eligible for Chartered Membership of the Society (Graduate Basis) – a requirement for any professional BPS postgraduate training course in psychology in the UK.

The programme covers the major branches of modern psychology and provides extensive training in research techniques. You will benefit from high levels of direct teaching and support from research-active staff.

As well as gaining a broad overview of the subject, the programme will enable you to engage in critical evaluation and appraisal of psychological models, theories, methods and findings in the discipline.

The MSc will introduce you to applied areas of the subject, such as cultural psychology, social psychology and individual differences, and to its core branches: cognitive psychology, biological psychology, developmental psychology and research methods.

Your research methods training will involve conducting practical laboratory experiments, learning how to evaluate evidence, communicating findings, designing studies and completing statistical analysis of data.

This is a one-year programme that takes place over three terms. You will take the following modules:

Term 1

Biological Psychology

Cognitive Psychology

Research Methods 1

Society and the Individual

Term 2

Conceptual and Historical Issues in Psychology

Cultural Psychology

Lifespan

Research Methods 2

Term 3

Research Methods 3

‘Throughout my studies, I’ve gained a broad and relevant theoretical knowledge base to take forward in my career. I’m hoping to continue my development to become a sports psychologist.’

Alex Matthews, UK,
MSc Psychology

www.regents.ac.uk/alex

Future opportunities

This programme will enable you to develop the key skills and abilities you will need for a career as a professional psychologist. In particular, you will develop the critical evaluation and research skills necessary to be successful in the field of psychology.

A BPS-accredited qualification is essential for anyone wishing to pursue a career, or to undertake further professional study, in the discipline.

Psychology teaches skills and knowledge useful to a variety of careers, from marketing, human resources, advertising and the creative industries, to education, counselling and psychotherapy. The programme will equip you with highly transferable skills that you can use in whichever career path you choose.

Entry requirements

A UK bachelor’s degree in any subject, with the award of 2:2 (or its international equivalent) and mathematics at GCSE grade C or equivalent.

Advanced Diploma in Existential Psychotherapy

Existential psychotherapy is a down-to-earth form of therapy that responds to an inner prompt to find out who we really are and how we want to live. The emphasis is on a person's existence rather than their mind, their actual experience rather than psychological theories.

This programme will interest people who appreciate that each of us has unique ways of making sense of the world, ourselves and others, and that can change, not just at the cognitive level, but importantly, at the level of everyday experience.

The Advanced Diploma in Existential Psychotherapy (ADEP) blends existential philosophy as discourse and as practice, and draws on the willingness and courage of each student to challenge and be challenged within the group.

Existential psychotherapy is based on continental philosophy and phenomenology: life problems are understood as philosophical and the process of therapy enables clients to become aware of, and able to articulate, their philosophy of life.

The approach emphasises your existence rather than your mind, your experience rather than your theoretical conceptualisations. The therapist's attitude and embodied presence is fundamental to the process of existential psychotherapy, rather than any specific technique.

The therapist seeks to attend to the client's experience of being in the world through descriptive clarification and challenge. At the same time, the process challenges therapists to consider and confront their own biases and assumptions.

You will engage with philosophical questions and develop a philosophical attitude and openness. You will develop a critically reflective perspective on existential psychotherapy from the point of view of other therapeutic modalities, as well as examining these from the point of view of existential psychotherapy.

You will learn how to use feedback from your peers and supervisors effectively and ethically, and gain an understanding of research methods relevant to clinical practice.

Learning methods include academic and practical seminars, small-group training supervisions, participation in personal and professional development groups, and clinical practice guided by experienced professionals and your own personal therapy.

Programme content

You will study the following modules

The Body, Love and Sexuality

Existence and Therapy

Ethics and Existential Psychotherapy

Existential Psychotherapy and Critical Psychopathology

Heidegger and Psychotherapy

Inter-Subjectivity and Relatedness

Language and Existential Psychotherapy

Psychotherapy and Existence

You will be expected to work throughout the course with your own clients (normally three adult clients on a minimum basis of once a week). At least one of these clients should be long-term.

For the award of ADEP, you are required to complete a minimum of 150 clinical hours during the taught element of the programme.

For UKCP accreditation, you are required to complete 450 clinical hours in total, including up to 200 accrued prior to the start of the ADEP programme.

You must also remain in once-weekly individual psychotherapy with a UKCP member therapist throughout your training.

Attendance

This is a two-year programme, consisting of one full day's attendance for 30 weeks a year, arranged into seven modules.

There is one intake each year in January:

“The liberation that I get from studying this philosophy is indescribable and the programme whets my academic appetite. In my clinical practice I am able to distill the essence of these philosophies and apply them in my interactions with clients. The ability to work with abiding relevance to clients’ conditions and facilitate heightened awareness and reflection in their mind are aspects that I find very fulfilling.’

Nandu Menon, UK,
Advanced Diploma in Existential Psychotherapy (ADEP)

www.regents.ac.uk/nandu

Entry requirements

Applicants for the ADEP must have completed the taught components of the MA Psychotherapy & Counselling, or equivalent master’s-level professional training in psychotherapy, counselling or counselling psychology.

You will need to demonstrate a knowledge and understanding of existential philosophy commensurate with study at master’s level.

We also require completion of a minimum of 100 client-contact hours in a formal clinical placement, and a minimum of two years’ regular individual psychotherapy.

In addition, applicants must demonstrate emotional maturity and an ability to be self-reflective, to function effectively and ethically under pressure, and to manage conflict constructively.

Apply online at www.regents.ac.uk/apply. The application process includes an interview.

Professional registration

Completing the ADEP will make you eligible for professional registration as a practitioner of existential psychotherapy.

UKCP membership

The Society for Existential Analysis is an accrediting organisation within the Constructivist and Existential College of the UKCP. It registers graduates of the School’s Advanced Diploma in Existential Psychotherapy as UKCP registered existential psychotherapists.

BACP accreditation

At the end of Year 1, you may have enough training hours to apply for individual accreditation with the British Association for Counselling & Psychotherapy. Please note that BACP also requires candidates to show evidence of 450 hours of supervised clinical practice. Application to BACP can only be done by the individual and the School is unable to play a role in this process.

Advanced Diploma in Integrative Psychotherapy

This programme provides a combined training in psychodynamic, humanistic, systemic and cognitive-behavioural approaches within the ethos of the integrative attitude espoused by the School, and within an integrative perspective of the therapeutic relationship.

The Advanced Diploma in Integrative Psychotherapy (ADIP) will enable you to develop a comprehensive theoretical knowledge and understanding of a range of psychotherapy approaches and systems.

It will help you to become a theoretically well-informed practitioner who thinks independently and is skilful and ethical in practice. You will also gain understanding of ethical research methods relevant to clinical practice.

You will consolidate your clinical experience in the practice of an integrative approach of your choice or construction. The programme will encourage you to develop a capacity for informed reflection on your clinical practice, and you will learn to engage effectively in the use of clinical supervision with your peers and supervisors.

Learning methods include academic and skills seminars and lectures, small-group training supervisions, participation in personal and professional development groups, and further clinical practice guided by experienced professionals.

You must also remain in once-weekly individual psychotherapy with a UKCP member therapist (preferably a member of RSPP) throughout your training.

Programme content

You will take the following modules:

Cognitive-Behavioural Therapy
Critical Psychopathology
Gestalt and Focusing Approaches
Issues in Professional Practice
Jungian and Transpersonal Approaches
Systemic and Psychosexual Approaches

You will be expected to work throughout the course with your own clients (normally three adult clients on a minimum basis of once a week). At least one of these clients should be long-term.

You must complete a minimum of 200 hours of supervised clinical practice to qualify for the ADIP. This will count towards the 450 hours needed for UKCP membership.

Attendance

The course is designed to be completed in two years and consists of one full day's attendance for 30 weeks a year, arranged into six 10-week modules.

There is one intake each year in January, alternately Thursdays or Fridays 10:00–17:00.

The DPsych programme aims to develop highly-skilled, well-rounded, self-aware psychological practitioners and researchers who will make a valuable contribution to the profession, both inside and outside the consulting room.

A successful graduate of the DPsych meets the standards and competencies set by the Health and Care Professions Council (HCPC) and the British Psychological Society (BPS), and is eligible for registration and chartership with those bodies.

The DPsych programme is committed to producing practitioner psychologists who are well prepared to meet the needs of each client and to utilise individualised formulation and intervention, while never losing sight of the relationship at the core of the endeavour.

To support this, the DPsych gives training in three approaches to therapy: existential-phenomenological, cognitive-behavioural, and psychodynamic.

The principal model of the programme is existential-phenomenological psychotherapy, one of the foundational influences in the profession of counselling psychology. This emphasises the subjective, lived experience; recognises the importance of dialogue; and takes a holistic, relational view of human nature and of psychological difficulties.

Irrespective of the modality employed, we encourage and develop a 'pervasive existential sensibility' in our trainees' therapeutic work.

The programme will enable you to:

Develop as a competent, reflective, ethically sound, resourceful and informed practitioner, able to work in therapeutic and non-therapeutic contexts

Value the imaginative, interpretative, personal and intimate aspects of the practice of counselling psychology

Commit to ongoing personal and professional development and enquiry

Understand, develop and apply models of psychological inquiry for the creation of new knowledge which is appropriate to the multi-dimensional nature of relationships between people

Appreciate the significance of the wider social, cultural and political domains within which counselling psychology operates

Adopt a questioning and evaluative approach to the philosophy, practice, research and theory which constitutes counselling psychology

Completion of this programme will enable you to apply for Chartered Membership of the BPS (CPsychol) and full membership of the Division of Counselling Psychology (DCoP), and will enable you to apply to register with the HCPC as a Counselling Psychologist.

'I am hoping to qualify as a counselling psychologist. I chose the DPsych in Counselling Psychology at Regent's because it is one of the only available programmes which is rooted in the existential-phenomenological approach. The course is not just academic, it is well-rounded and challenges and motivates you to learn more about yourself.'

Programme outline

This is a full-time, three-year programme, requiring attendance two days a week in year one and one day a week in years two and three, from 10:00–17:00.

You are expected to be in personal therapy once a week, and to undertake clinical placements for a minimum of one day per week, for the duration of your training. You will also be engaging in research for approximately one day per week during years two and three.

During your clinical placements you will be practising as a trainee counselling psychologist. Our trainees work in a variety of settings, including NHS psychological services, primary and secondary care settings, community mental health teams, student counselling services, services covering drugs and alcohol and eating disorders, and other charitable and organisational settings.

Throughout your training you will be expected to keep a log of your professional development and emerging competencies as a counselling psychologist, as well as a log of your clinical work.

Criteria for the award of DPsych

Your doctoral training culminates in the submission of a three-part portfolio, which is examined by viva voce.

This doctoral portfolio consists of an introduction, a combined clinical case study/ process report/reflection from your third-year coursework and a research thesis of no more than 40,000 words.

You will also need to complete a minimum of 450 hours of clinical/supervised practice and 120 hours of personal therapy over the three years.

Professional registration

The DPsych is approved by the Health & Care Professions Council (HCPC) and accredited by the British Psychological Society (BPS).

Successful completion of the programme will enable you to apply for chartered membership of the BPS (CPsychol), and to register with the HCPC. It is a legal requirement that anyone who wishes to practise using a title protected by the Health and Social Work Professions Order 2001 is on the HCPC register.

Entry requirements

We require a minimum of a 2:1 bachelor's degree in psychology¹ and a minimum of six months' face-to-face counselling work or work in another professional helping capacity.

A Certificate in Psychotherapy & Counselling is desirable.

We also require Graduate Basis for Chartered Membership² (GBC) with the British Psychological Society (BPS guidelines). You may also be required to attend an interview.

Applicants are required to have the capacity to undertake doctoral-level research and to demonstrate a high level of interpersonal skills and self-reflective capacities.

Please apply using the application form that can be downloaded from our website at www.regents.ac.uk/dpsych.

You will also need to supply two references, which should be academic or professional (we are not able to accept references from therapists). Please also download the official reference form from our website.

¹ In exceptional circumstances, such as for individuals who have already completed a master's or PhD, we will consider a 2:2 award

² GBC was previously known as GBR (Graduate Basis for Registration). Both are accepted as proof of appropriate prior training

Postgraduate Certificate in Mediation & Conflict Resolution

Disputes abound in almost all areas of life. Business, education, healthcare, housing, transport and employment are just a few of the sectors where conflicts arise and there is an increasing need for accredited mediators. In turn, mediators themselves are increasingly seeking a greater academic underpinning of their skills.

This new qualification has been developed to give students a deeper understanding of the skills and methods required for successful mediation and conflict management.

It incorporates Regent's existing Mediation & Alternative Dispute Resolution course (see page 84) providing accreditation as a mediator, and goes further by providing an academic overview of the theoretical frameworks relevant to conflict resolution and mediation.

The programme is unique in its psychological approach. It covers the psychological principles underpinning conflict, and gives you the opportunity to apply a variety of approaches to the prevention, avoidance, management and resolution of disputes.

Although of benefit to members of the legal professions, the programme is relevant to a wider audience. In disputes across a vast range of sectors, the parties involved look for an accredited mediator who has an in-depth knowledge of the theory and practical application of mediation in conflict situations.

Who is the programme for?

This is a part-time programme designed to fit around delegates' existing work commitments. It is aimed not only at current and prospective professional mediators, but at anyone who is likely to encounter conflict on a day-to-day basis, whether nationally or internationally.

The skills you develop will prove invaluable in all areas of life, dealing with every type of person, whether colleagues or staff, friends and family members, clients or opponents.

Learning and assessment

The programme comprises three modules:

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR)

Applied Theory

Theories of Conflict

The intensive ADR module takes place over five days, with lectures, training exercises and supervised mediation role-plays focusing on effective communication in both professional and personal environments. This intensive module runs at several points during the academic year (see page 84).

Lectures and seminar groups on the remaining two modules are scheduled for a single late afternoon/evening session per week over the course of two successive terms. Theories of Conflict provides an overview of relevant theoretical frameworks, while Applied Theory offers an insight into how different approaches to conflict resolution and mediation work in practice.

Our teachers are all experienced accredited mediators, trainers, lecturers and authors, with backgrounds predominantly in law and psychotherapy.

Entry requirements

Entry to the programme is by way of either a first degree (minimum 2:2), and you will need to have a minimum of a C in English at GCSE level or equivalent. Alternatively, you may have two years' relevant mediation experience (to be assessed at an interview), combined with a written assessment, or previous successful completion of the Regent's University Mediation & ADR course within the past seven years.

Future opportunities

Upon successful completion of the course, students will be entitled to join one or more of the many Mediation Provider Panels listed on the Ministry of Justice Government website and so begin to market themselves as accredited mediators. The School also has useful links with several organisations delivering mediation work throughout the UK.

Location

Regent's Park

Duration

1 year, part time

Start dates

February and
September

Mediation & Alternative Dispute Resolution

The skills for effective mediation are similar to those required for successful counselling. This course employs well-proven psychotherapy and counselling techniques to develop the particular skills and methods required for mediation and conflict management, including both conflict resolution and conflict avoidance.

The Mediation & Alternative Dispute Resolution course offers a unique psychotherapeutic perspective on mediation.

It explores the strategies and behaviour patterns that parties employ when in dispute with one another, whether they are executive directors involved in multi-million pound litigation or suburban neighbours arguing over a boundary.

The course offers a straightforward, practical approach to conflict resolution. It will teach you how to identify underlying areas of controversy and tension, manage emotions and deal with rigid confrontational attitudes.

You will learn how to deal with commercial, industrial, legal and personal disputes, using both time-limited and open-ended models of mediation.

The course combines lectures and training skills sessions with exercises and demonstrations, plus numerous mediation role-plays under supervision.

The course is highly experiential. You will learn and develop your skills through mock mediations, and ample periods of feedback and discussion within each session.

Training options

There are two options available:

Five-day course

The five-day course provides a comprehensive framework of all the required knowledge, skills and techniques you will need to become a skilful mediator. It includes an assessment day which leads to official accreditation, allowing you to become a fully Accredited (RSPP) Mediator.

Four-day course

This course similarly provides all the knowledge, skills and techniques you will need to become a skilful mediator, but does not include an assessment day. Participants receive a Certificate in Mediation.

For further details, contact the course leader, Paul Randolph, randolphp@regents.ac.uk

Recognition

Successful completion of the five-day course will enable you to achieve accreditation granted by RSPP. This is recognised by:

The Law Society for the purposes of entitling the School's accredited (solicitor) mediators to join the Law Society's Civil/ Commercial Mediation Panel

The Law Society and The Bar Council as continuing professional development (four-day course: 32 CPD hours; five-day course: 33 CPD hours (Bar Council); 40 CPD hours (Law Society))

The Legal Services Commission as a Mediator Course Provider in the Funding Code Manual (entitles our accredited mediators to Funding Assistance (Legal Aid))

One-day co-mediation courses on joint working for accredited mediators

Bespoke mediation courses tailored to particular sectors

Certificate in Clinical Supervision

This course offers the knowledge required for clinical supervision and serves as an initial qualification for supervisors. It takes an academically and practically informed approach which is culturally sensitive to the diverse needs of both clients and supervisees.

You will be taught by specialists in the field who offer a range of theoretical approaches and practical experience for an in-depth, integrated approach to the provision of ethical and professional clinical supervision.

The course provides a balance in content between theory and practice, including existing as well as emerging models of clinical supervision. It emphasises experiential practice and reflective learning in order to develop you as a responsive supervisor.

You will cover humanistic, psychodynamic and cognitive-behavioural approaches to supervision, and learn how to integrate them into your own approach to clinical supervision.

Who is the course for?

This is a part-time, post-professional course for qualified psychotherapists, counsellors and counselling psychologists, and allied professions such as social workers and similar service providers seeking to gain clinical supervisory skills.

Next steps

The course consists of a year's work, conducted over six weekends. Successful completion of all six weekends, along with the required essays, will result in the award of the Certificate in Clinical Supervision and 72 hours of CPD credits.

Entry requirements

Applicants should have a minimum of three years' post-qualification experience as a psychotherapist.

Please download an application form at www.regents.ac.uk/clinical. Alternatively, email rspp@regents.ac.uk or call +44 (0)20 7487 7505 to request a form.

MA Creative Leadership

Leaders are influencers with the insights and skills to change situations and move organisations in new directions. Their impact can be profound and life-changing – for themselves and for others. This innovative programme enables leaders to explore their inner resources in greater depth and discover how to make the most of them.

This unique and highly regarded master's programme gives those involved in leading (in any capacity) an opportunity to explore leadership in general, and their own leadership in particular, in challenging and exciting ways.

Reflecting on your own leadership style and practices, you will develop a dynamic, flexible approach to the challenges of leadership today and in the future.

You will gain deeper knowledge of yourself – how you see the world, how you think and how you translate your ideas into behaviours. You will also develop new skills to help you be a better leader, especially in fast-changing and complex environments.

The programme draws on the latest academic research across a wide spectrum of disciplines, from international business to the creative arts, and from philosophy to psychotherapy.

This groundbreaking transdisciplinary approach will equip you with a broad range of skills and knowledge to help you become an effective, versatile and resilient leader.

Those you work with will benefit from your fresh perspective, renewed energy and enhanced capability in handling the challenges of your job or role.

Key features

A flexible programme that enables you to develop your professional skills while continuing in your day-to-day role

Unique combination of intensive and distance learning

The opportunity to work on real issues from your work environment

Guidance and support from expert tutors across a vast range of disciplines

A personal mentor to support you through the whole programme

The opportunity to build a supportive and stimulating professional network beyond graduation

Develops an appreciation for, and critical understanding of, pluralistic philosophy, epistemology, and practice

Integrates the 'being' and 'doing' qualities of effective leadership practice

How does it work?

This is a part-time degree spread over 18 months, enabling those with heavy workloads to continue to fulfil their responsibilities while studying for a professional master's.

Study takes place through five intensive teaching weeks, each separated by 12 weeks of distance-learning in your professional role.

Each 'intensive' explores a different theme, with assignments linked to your work context to complete after each one. You will keep a learning journal to record your personal experiences and the impact of your studies.

Our staff of academics and practitioners come from a diverse range of backgrounds: mediation, business ethics, psychotherapy, philosophy, organisational behaviour, international relations, the theatre, design and global management, as well as education and training.

“The MA Creative Leadership is not a standard master’s programme. Not only does it leave you with academic knowledge, reading material and the theories of leadership; it helps you to embody what you have learned by practising them in the classroom and in your own business context.”

Kutay Kavukcu, Turkey,
MA Creative Leadership

Programme content

Intensive One

Awakening: Leading Yourself

This first intensive week examines how self-awareness is vital to good leadership. Using self-reflection, critical thinking and the latest research into brain functioning, you will explore how your experiences have moulded your leadership thinking and practices to date, and focus on the inner resources that will help you maximise your ability as a leader in the future.

Intensive Two

Re-ordering: Leading in Context

The second intensive examines the relationship between leadership and context using insights from philosophy, art and the social sciences. You will consider theories about leadership and their impact on your behaviour, before examining your own situation in depth. You will also explore the need for agility in leadership through group work and play.

Intensive Three

Connecting: Leading in a Relational World

Today’s leaders must be able to handle the ‘connectedness’ of the modern world, with its new technologies and increasing globalisation. You will study complexity theory and learn how to utilise its insights in your own problem-solving and sense-making. A simulation exercise will encourage you to analyse the way you handle complex relationships and adapt your behaviour in different situations.

Intensive Four

Embodiment: Leading Change

Using theatre techniques and modern mediation practices, you will consider how you convey your thoughts and feelings to those you work with. You will examine the nature of change – its impact on yourself and others, and how you can embody changes that you initiate as a leader.

Intensive Five

Synthesis: Leading into the Future

This final intensive begins by exploring how effective you are in preparing people for the future. Drawing on your learning from the whole programme, you will plan your final project as you identify ways in which your leadership will develop as your career progresses.

Entry requirements

You will need to have a minimum of five years’ full-time, relevant work experience. In addition, we invite you to attend an interview. Formal academic qualifications, including undergraduate and postgraduate qualifications, are welcome but are not a requirement for admission. You will be asked to submit a 1500-word personal statement.

Research Degrees

Consolidate your years of learning and experience by undertaking a research degree at Regent's. Our MPhil and PhD degrees are awarded by the University of Northampton. Our expertise extends across a wide range of subjects in our Faculties of Business & Management and Humanities, Arts & Social Sciences, and the Regent's Institute of Languages & Culture.

Research at Regent's is organised around central themes that focus on the University's core activities in business, humanities, social science and languages. We have particular strength in specific areas of these disciplines, and have the staff with the expertise and experience to supervise research degrees. We also offer a wide range of learning support and research training to help you in reaching your goal.

Individual staff members are actively engaged in their chosen areas of interest, publish widely and attend conferences all over the world. We publish an Annual Research Report, copies of which can be found on the research pages of our website.

Business and management

We have the expertise to supervise PhDs in the following key areas.

Management, Culture and Business

Design; organisation behaviour; governance and ethics; area studies including cross-culture heritage management; technology identities; migration studies; knowledge management

Marketing, Branding and Business Strategy

Consumer behaviour; branding; digital marketing; marketing strategy; transnational marketing; consumer's diaspora marketing

Banking and Finance

Research centres

The learning and teaching environment for potential PhD degrees is underpinned by the six inter-disciplinary research centres based in the University. PhD students will be encouraged to get involved with the activities of the centres and to attend the relevant seminars. Please see pages 08-09 for more information on the centres.

Research Degrees – Resources and How to Apply

A research degree requires a considerable investment of self-directed study and time from the student. At Regent's we offer extensive support, training and added value to help you achieve your goal. You will also have access to training and support, including postgraduate research skills development, from the University of Northampton.

Learning resources

The University has made considerable investments in learning resources in the last five years. The main campus library has been refurbished and has a range of computer facilities, meeting areas, and reproduction facilities for students.

Our restricted-access Postgraduate Centre has a social area, kitchen, computer terminals and reproduction facilities, along with group- and silent-study room areas.

Of specific relevance to potential research students is the provision of:

A current collection in the library that supports research skills at PhD level

EThOS access to other PhD theses including Regent's PhD theses

An arrangement with the University of London library at Senate House, currently including six-month access for research students or a day pass where appropriate

An e-book service to support specialised subjects (students can self-select material within guidelines)

Access arrangements for other London libraries (plans are underway for us to join the SCONUL Access scheme)

Focused one-to-one information search sessions provided by academic liaison librarians

Email and telephone support from librarians for researchers as required

The provision of inter-library loans

Business and management

At Regent's, we focus on supporting research and teaching at both an individual and on a group basis. We provide workshops for skills development, as well as workshops for developing research and teaching awareness. We also encourage our staff to further their research by

Developing research awareness

Implementing an internal system for developing publications output via research paper series

Assisting in selecting and targeting appropriate academic journals

Promoting the development of research interest groups within the University

Research activities – workshops and seminars

Research in the Faculty of Business & Management is supported by a programme of targeted activities designed to develop individual and collective research capabilities and skills. These include:

Workshops in applying for research funding

Workshops on business-to-business marketing and grant applications, in collaboration with the Academy of Marketing

Workshop seminars on getting published

Research techniques workshops

SPSS data analysis training event

Multivariate analysis and structural equation modelling workshop

Qualitative analysis workshop

PhD research supervision workshops

Writing retreats for researchers

Case-study writing workshops– hosted by Cranfield University Case Writing Team

Faculty research conference

Faculty book fair

The two research centres, Regent's Centre for Transnational Studies and the Centre for Banking & Finance host international conferences, regular research seminars, workshops and book launches related to the key areas of research

Humanities, arts and social sciences

Regent's offers research students all the academic advantages of a central London location along with the attractions of working in a uniquely multinational environment.

We host a large number of seminars, colloquia and conferences with participants from academia, politics and business and have close links with professional organisations.

Within the Faculty of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences, we foster a supportive research environment, with extensive training programmes on offer for research staff and students. The activities of our research centres also support this ethos.

Research activities – workshops and seminars

Research in the Faculty of Humanities, Arts & Social Sciences is supported by a programme of targeted activities designed to develop individual and collective research capabilities and skills. These include:

Quarterly, day-long doctoral sessions including – presentations, critical review, additional selected supervisors and outside academic specialists

Advanced research workshops – specialist convenor sessions focusing on methodology and hands-on practical workshop exercises and/or participant data analyses

Research training sessions run by the University of Northampton

Quantitative (SPSS) and qualitative (NVivo) practical data analysis workshops

Relevant specialist doctoral-level workshops at other UK universities

Training seminars in research skills, interviewing, submission, vivas and more, are available to students on other programmes

The DPsych professional doctorate also runs faculty webinars/seminars on a variety of topics

Within the Networks of Power research centre, we host an international speakers' seminar, human rights and other seminars, as well as book launches and conferences.

The Psychotherapy & Counselling Psychology Reflections Research Centre (PCPRC) runs an annual conference, hosts visiting research fellowships and publishes a biannual research journal

How to apply

To apply for a PhD/doctoral programme, you will generally need to hold an honours degree at 2:1 level or above (or international equivalent) in an appropriate subject. A higher degree such as a master's may be required.

Please note that at present, we are only able to accept applicants who are permanent residents of the UK, or from an EU nation. We are working towards sponsoring international students for research degrees in the future. For the latest information please visit www.regents.ac.uk/study/international-students

If you would like to undertake a PhD, please see our areas of expertise on pages 90-91 and the list of supervising staff on pages 94-95. If you feel we might be the right institution for you, please approach us in the first instance by sending an email to enquiries@regents.ac.uk, or by telephone on +44 (0)20 7487 7505.

Please state your area of study and the proposed direction of your research. Please also state whether you have a specific supervisor in mind. Your enquiry will be forwarded to the relevant research head, who will contact you for further discussion.

The next stage will be to submit a formal written application. Application forms are available from the research head that has been in contact with you. Your application will be considered jointly by Regent's and the University of Northampton. We aim to process all applications within six weeks from the point of submission.

If you wish to undertake a PhD at Regent's, it is important to identify your proposed area of research and find a potential supervisor whose areas of expertise and interest complement your own. Our highly qualified and experienced staff members will be able to help you and ultimately supervise you to successful completion. For detailed information on each staff member, visit their online profile.

Admissions

Our students come from many backgrounds, but they all share a combination of academic ability with an enthusiasm for new challenges. We invite applications from students with the maturity and motivation to meet the demands of a competitive programme.

Entry requirements for degree programmes

For entry to MA and MSc degrees (with the exception of MA Writing for Screen & Stage and MA Creative Leadership), we require a minimum of a lower-second class (2:2) UK honours undergraduate degree or its international equivalent from a recognised institution.

We also accept other equivalent qualifications as recommended by the National Academic Recognition Information Centre. For a full list, see our website or contact us for further advice.

Some programmes vary in their entry requirements, so please check the individual programme pages for additional information.

Exceptional entry

We welcome applications from candidates who do not meet the essential entry criteria outlined above. In order to be accepted for exceptional entry, you must:

Hold a minimum of two years' relevant work experience

Provide a 1000-word personal statement outlining your reasons for applying, and how your previous experience is of relevance to the programme you are applying for

Be prepared to attend an interview with the Postgraduate Admissions Panel

Please contact us for further information on applying through this route:
enquiries@regents.ac.uk

English language requirements

All programmes are taught in English, and fluency in the language is required. Applicants whose native language is not English are required to demonstrate their fluency in English. However, you may be exempt from taking an English language test if the last three years of your full-time education have been taught completely in English.

Degree programmes

We accept the following English language qualifications for all MA and MSc degree programmes (minimum grades required are indicated):

Cambridge Certificate in Advanced English, grade C

GCSE/IGCSE English, grade C

IB Diploma English A, grade 4 or above, HL or SL. English B, grade 5 at HL

IELTS (International English Language Testing System) with an overall score of 6.5

Pearson Test (PTE Academic) with an average score of 58

Applicants for the following programmes must have IELTS with an overall score of 7.0:

MA Psychotherapy & Counselling

Advanced Diplomas in Existential and Integrative Psychotherapy

DPsych Counselling Psychology

MPhil/ PhD Research Degrees

Other English language qualifications may be accepted. Please see our website or contact us for more information.

On-campus English diagnostic test

If you live in London or are able to visit us, we can offer you a free English diagnostic test through our English Language School (see page 18). For more information or to arrange a test, please contact enquiries@regents.ac.uk

Visa applicants

Students who require an international student visa to study in the UK and whose native language is not English, may also be required to meet specific grade requirements and conditions of study as stipulated by UK Visas and Immigration. www.regents.ac.uk

Step 1 Apply

Please apply directly to us through our website at www.regents.ac.uk/apply

Alternatively, you can download a hard-copy application form from our website for printing. If you would like us to send you a copy, please email enquiries@regents.ac.uk or call +44 (0)20 7487 7505.

Applicants for the Certificate in Clinical Supervision, DPpsych and Mediation & Alternative Dispute Resolution courses should download the individual application forms from the relevant programme pages of the website.

Together with your completed application form, you should also send us the following supporting documents. These can be sent by post, email or fax:

- Copies of academic transcripts and certificates from your previous studies e.g. university certificates
- A letter of reference. This may be academic or professional. The letter should be on official headed paper, or emailed to admit@regents.ac.uk from an official company or educational institution email account
- A 300–500 word personal statement outlining the reasons for applying to your chosen programme, and how you feel you will benefit from the course of study (700 words for the MA Luxury Brand Management and 1,000 words for the MA Creative Leadership)
- Applicants for the MA Writing for Screen & Stage only: sample(s) of your creative writing
- A copy of your CV/resumé
- A copy of the photograph (ID) page of your passport
- One recent digital (jpeg) head-and-shoulders colour photograph of yourself (please send to: admit@regents.ac.uk)
- If you are not a native English speaker, proof of your English proficiency (see page 96)

Applicants for Psychotherapy and Psychology programmes: please see the relevant programme pages for additional submission requirements.

Applicants for Mediation & Alternative Dispute Resolution courses need only complete and sign the application form available on our website at www.regents.ac.uk/adr. You do not need to send any of the additional documentation outlined above.

Step 2 Making an offer

We will assess whether you meet our minimum entry requirements and will make you an offer by both email and post, or notify you that you have been unsuccessful.

Applicants are assessed for admission on the basis of their submitted application materials. Additionally, applicants for some programmes may be invited for interview.

If you have completed your education and have met all the entry requirements, you will be sent an unconditional offer. If you still have to finish your exams, or have yet to submit supporting documentation, you will be issued a conditional offer.

You can expect to receive a decision on your application within 10 working days of receipt of your completed application and supporting documents.

Step 3 Accepting the offer

If you wish to accept the offer you must:

Confirm your acceptance via email/post/
telephone/in person

Pay the non-refundable tuition fee deposit
(if applicable)

For information on fees, see page 100.

Step 4 Full acceptance and visa

Once we receive your acceptance we will issue the final set of documentation, and (where needed) the relevant visa support documentation.

Both offer and acceptance of a place at Regent's University London are subject to the rules and regulations relating to the University and its programmes.

Visa applicants

To find out if you need a student visa please consult the UK Visas and Immigration website: www.gov.uk/visas-immigration
Please note it is your responsibility to arrange the appropriate visa.

Although there is no formal deadline to pay your advance deposit, if you need to apply for an international student visa to study in the UK, then we recommend that you pay these as soon as possible.
